Enter Jago and Roderigo.

Rod. Ush; Never tell me, I take it much unkindly That thou who hast had my Purse, As if the strings were thine, shouldst know of this. Jag. But you'll not hear me, If ever I did dream of such a matter, abhor me. Rod. Thou toldst me, thou didst hold him in thy hate. Jag. Despise me if I do not: three great ones of the City In personal suit to make me his Lieutenant, Oft capt to him, and by the faith of man, I know my price, I am worth no worse a place. But he, as loving his own pride and purposes, Evades them, with a bombast circumstance, Horribly stuffed with Epithites of war: Non-suits my Mediators: for Certes, (says he) I have already chose my Officer, and what was he? Forsooth, a great Arithmetician, One Michael Cassio, a Florentine, A fellow almost damn'd in a fair wife, That never set a squadron in the field, Nor the division of a battle knows, More than a Spinster, unlefs the bookish Theorique, Wherein the tongued Consuls can propose As masterly as he: meere prattle without practice, Is all his Souldier-ship: but he Sir had the election, And I, of whom his eyes had seen the proofe, At Rhodes, at Cipres, and on other grounds, Christn'd and Heathen, must be be-leed and calm'd, By Debitor and Creditor, this Counter-Caster: He (in good time) must his Lieutenant be, And I Sir (blesse the mark) his Moore-ships Ancient.
Rod. By heaven I rather would have been his hangman,

Jag. But there's no remedy,

'Tis the curse of service,
Preferment goes by letter and affection,
Not by the old gradation, where each second
Stood heir to the first:
Now Sir be judge your self,
Whether I, in any just tearm am affin'd
To love the Moore?

Rod. I would not follow him then.

Jag. O Sir, content you,
I follow him to serve my turn upon him,
We cannot all be Masters, nor all Masters
Cannot be truly followed, you shall mark
Many a dutious knee-crooking knave,
That (doting on his own obsequious bondage)
Wears out his time much like his Masters Affe,
For nought but provender, and when he's old cashier'd;
Whip me such honest knaves:
Others there are,
Who trim'd in forms and vissages of duty,
Keep yet their hearts, attending on themselves,
And throwing but shews of service on their Lords,
Doe well thrive by 'em,
And when they have lin'd their coats,
Do themselves homage,
Those fellows have some soul,
And such a one do I profefs my self, —— for Sirs,
It is as sure as you are Roderigo,
Were I the Moore, I would not be Jagus:
In following him, I follow but my self.
Heaven is my judge, not I,
For love and duty, but seeming so, for my peculiar end:
For when my outward action doth demonstrate.
The native act, and figure of my heart,
In complement externe, 'tis not long after,
But I will wear my heart upon my sleeve,
For Daws to peck at,
I am not what I am.

Rod. What a full fortune does the thlickips owe,
If he can carry't thus?

Jag. Call up her father,
Rowse him, make after him, poysfon his delight,
Proclaim him in the street, intence her Kin'men;
And tho he in a fertile climate dwell,
Plague him with flyes: tho that his joy be joy's,
Yet throw such changes of vexation out.
As it may lose some colour.

Rod. Here is her fathers house, I'll call aloud.

Jag. Do with like timorous accent, and dire yell;
As when by night and negligence, the fire
Is spied in populous Cities.

Rod. What ho, Brabantio, Signior Brabantio, ho,

Jag. Awake, what ho, Brabantio,

Thieves, thieves, thieves:

Look to your house, your Daughter, and your Bags,

Thieves, thieves.

Brabantio at a window.

Bra. What is the reason of this terrible summons?

What is the matter there?

Rod. Signior is all your family within?

Jag. Are your doors lockt?

Bra. Why, wherefore ask you this?

Jag. Sir you are rob'd, for shame put on your gown,

Your heart is burst, you have lost half your soul;

Even now, very now, an old black Ram
Is tupping your white Ewe; arise, arise,

Awake the snorting Citizens with the bell,

Or else the Devil will make a Grandfire of you, arise I say.

Bra. What, have you lost your wits?

Rod. Most reverend Signior, do you know my voice?

Bra. Not I, what are you?

Rod. My name is Roderigo.

Bra. The worse welcome,

I have charg'd thee not to haunt about my doors,

In honest plainness, thou hast heard me say

My daughter is not for thee, and now in madness,

Being full of supper, and distempering draughts,

Upon malicious bravery, doft thou come

To start my quiet?

Rod. Sir, sir, sir.

Bra. But thou must needs be sure

My spirit and my place have in them power,

To make this bitter to thee.

Rod. Patience good Sir.

Bra. What, tell'st thou me of robbing? this is Venice,

My house is not a graunge.

Rod. Most grave Brabantio,

In simple and pure soul I come to you.

Jag. Sir you are one of those, that will not serve God, if the Devil bid you. Because we come to do you service, you think we are Russians, you'll have your daughter covered with a Barbary horse; you'll have your Nephews nigh to you; you'll have Courfers for Cousens, and Gennets for Germans.

Bra. What prophane wretch art thou?
Jag. I am one Sir, that come to tell you, your Daughter, and the Moore, are now making the Beast with two backs.

Bra. Thou art a villain.

Jag. You are a Senator.

Bra. This thou shalt answer, I know thee Roderigo.

Rod. Sir, I will answer any thing: But I beseech you,

If't be your pleasure, and most wise consent,
(As partly I find it is) that your fair daughter
At this odd even, and dull watch oth'night,
Transported with no worse nor better guard
But with a knave of common hire, a Gundeler,
To the gross clasps of a lascivious Moor:
If this be known to you and your allowance,
We then have done you bold and sawcy wrongs?
But if you know not this, my manners tell me,
We have your wrong rebuke: Do not believe
That from the sense of all civility,
I thus would play and trifle with your Reverence.
Your daughter (if you have not given her leave,
I say again) hath made a gross revolt,
Tying her duty, beauty, wit and fortunes,
In an extravagant and wheeling stranger,
Of here, and every where: Straight satise your self;
If she be in her Chamber, or your house,
Let loose on me the justice of the State,
For thus deluding you.

Bra. Strike on the tinder, Ho:

Give me a taper, call up all my people:
This accident is not unlike my dream;
beleef of it oppresses me already:
Light I say, light.

Jag. Farewell, for I must leave you,
It seems not meet, nor wholesome to my place,
To be produc'd (as if I say I shall,)
Against the Moore, for I do know the state,
(How ever this may gaul him with some check)
Cannot with safety cast him, for he's embark'd,
With such loud reason, to the Cipres wars,
(Which even now stands in act) that for their souls,
Another of his fathome, they have none
To lead their business, in which regard,
Tho I do hate him, as I do hells pains,
Yet for necessity of present life,
I must shew out a flag, and sign of love,
Which is indeed but sign, that you shall surely find him
Lead to the Sagitary the raised search,
And there will I be with him. So farewell.

Exit.
Enter Brabantio in his Night-gown, and Servants with Torches.

Bra. It is too true an evil, gone he is,
And what's to come of my despisèd time,
Is nought but bitterness now Roderigo,
Where didst thou see her? O unhappy girl!
With the Moor faith thou? who would be a father?
How didst thou know 'twas she? (O she deceives me
Paff thought,) what said the to you? get more tapers,
Raise all my kindred, are they married think you?

Rod. Truly I think they are.

Bra. O heaven, how got he out? O treason of the blood;

Fathers from hence, trust not your daughters minds,
By what you see them act: is there not charms,
By which the property of youth and manhood
May be abus'd? have you not read Roderigo,
Of some such thing.

Rod. Yes Sir, I have indeed.

Bra. Call up my Brother. O would you had had her,

Some one way, some another; do you know
Where we may apprehend her and the Moor?

Rod. I think I can discover him if you please to get good guard, and go along with me.

Bra. Pray you lead on, at every house I call,

I may command at most: get weapons no,

And raise some special Officers of might:

On good Roderigo, Ile deferve your pains

Exeunt.

Enter Othello, Jago, and Attendants with Torches.

Jag. Tho in the trade of war, I have slain men,

Yet do I hold it very stuff o'th conscience,

To do no contriv'd murder: I lack iniquity

Sometimes to do me service: nine or ten times

I had thought to have jerk'd him here

Under the ribs.

Oth. Tis better as it is,

Jag. Nay, but he prated,

And spoke such scurvy and provoking terms

Against your honour, that with the little godliness I have,

I did full hard forbear him: but I pray sir,

Are you fast married? For beware of this,

That the Magnifico is much beloved,

And hath in his effect, a voice potential,

As double as the Dukes, he will divorce you,

Or put upon you what restraint, and grievance,

The law (with all his might, to enforce it on,)
We'll give him cable.

Oth. Let him do his spite,

My services which I have done the Signiory,
Shall our tongue his-complaints, 'tis yet to know,
Which when I know that boating is an honour,
1 shall promulgate, I fetch my life and being
From men of royal height, and my demerits,
May speak unbonneted as proud a fortune
As this that I have reach'd; for know Jago.
But that I love the gentle Desdemona,
I would not my unhoused free condition,
Put into circumspection and confine
For the seas worth,

Enter Cassio with lights Officers, and Torcher.

But look what lights come yonder?

Jag. These are the raised Father and his friends,
You were best go in.

Oth. Not I, I must be found,

My parts, my Title, and my perfect soul,
Shall manifest my right by: is it they?

Jag. Janus I think no.

Oth. The Servants of the Duke, and my Lieutenant?
The goodness of the night upon you (friends,)
What is the news?

Caf. The Duke does greet you (General,) And he requires your haste, post-haste appearance,
Even on the instant.

Oth. What's the matter think you?

Caf. Something from Cipres, as I may divine,
It is a business of some heat, the Galleys
Have sent a dozen frequent messengers,
This very night one at another's heels:
And many of the Consuls rais'd and met,
Are at the Dukes already; you have been hotly call'd for,
When being not at your lodging to be found,
The Senate sent above three several quests
To search you out.

Oth. *Tis well I am found by you,
I will but spend a word here in the house, and go with you.

Caf. Ancient, what makes he here?

Ja. Faith he to night hath boarded a land Carriaet,
If it prove lawful prize, he's made for ever.

Caf. I do not understand.

Ja. He's married.

Caf. To whom?
Enter Brabantio, Roderigo, and others with Lights and Weapons.

Ja. Marry to—Come Captain, will you go?
Otb. Ha' with you.
Caj. Here comes another troop to seek for you.
Ja. It is Brabantio, General be advis'd,
He comes to bad intent.
Otb. Holla, stand there.
Rod. Seignior it is the Moor.
Bra. Down with him thief.
Jag. You Roderigo, come Sir, I am for you.
Otb. Keep up your bright swords, for the dew will rust 'em,
Good Seignior you shall more command with years.
Then with your weapons.
Bra. O thou foul thief, where hast thou flowed my daughter?
Damn'd as thou art, thou hast enchanted her,
For he refer me to all things of sense,
(If she in chains of magick were not bound)
Whether a maid so tender, fair and happy,
So opposite to marriage that she shun'd
The wealthy curled darlings of our Nation,
Would ever have (to incur a general mock)
Run from her gatdage to the footy bosome
Of such a thing as thou? to fear not to delight:
Judge me the world, if 'tis not gross in sense,
That thou hast practis'd on her with soul charms,
Abus'd her delicate youth with the drugs or minerals,
That weakens motion: He have't disputed on;
'Tis portable and palpable to thinking;
I therefore apprehend and do attach thee,
For an abuser of the world, a practiser
Of Arts inhibited, and out of warrant:
Lay hold upon him, if he do resist,
Subdue him at his peril.
Otb. Hold your hands,
Both you of my inclining and the rest:
Were it my cue to fight, I should have known it;
Without a prompter, where will you that I go,
To answer this your charge?
Bra. To prison, till fit time
Of Law, and course of direct Session
Call thee to answer,
Otb. What if I do obey?
How may the Duke be therewith satisfied;
Whose messengers are here about my side,
Upon some present business of the State,
To bear me to him.

 Officer. T'is true most worthy Seignior,
The Duke's in Council, and your noble self,
I am sure is sent for.

Bras. How? the Duke in Council?
In this time of night? bring him away;
Mine's not an idle cause: the Duke himself,
Or any of my Brothers of the State,
Cannot but feel this wrong, as 'twere their own.
For if such Actions, may have passage free,
Bondslaves, and Pagans shall our Statesmen be.

Enter Duke and Senators, set at a Table, with lights and Attendants.

Duke. There is no composition in these news,
That gives them credit.

  1 Sena. Indeed they are disproportioned,
My letters say, a hundred and seven Gallies,

  Du. And mine a hundred and forty.

  2 Sen. And mine two hundred:
But though they jump not on a just account,
(As in these cases, where they aim reports,
'Tis oft with difference,) yet do they all confirm
A Turkish fleet, and bearing up to Cipres.

  Du. Nay, it is possible enough to judgment:
I do not so secure me to the error,
But the main Article I do approve

In fearful sense

One within. What ho, what ho, what ho?

 Officer. A messenger from the Galleys,

  Du. Now, the business?

Sailor. The Turkish preparation makes for Rhodes,

So was I bid report here to the State, by Seignior Angelo.

  Du. How say you by this change?

  Sena. This cannot be by no assay of reason——
'Tis a Pageant,

To keep us in false gaze: when we consider
The importance of Ciprus to the Turk:
And let our selves again but understand,
That as it more concerns the Turk then Rhodes,
So may he with more facile question bear it,
For that it stands not in such warlike brace,
Who altogether lacks th'abilities
That Rhodes is dreft in: if we make thought of this,
We must not think the Turk is so unskilful,

Enter a Messenger.

To
To leave that latest which concerns him first;
Neglecting an attempt of ease and gain,
To wake and wage a danger profitless.

_Du._ Nay, in all confidence he's not for _Rhodes._

_Officer._ Here is more news.

_Mess._ The _Ottomites_, reverend and gracious,
Steering with due course, toward the _Isle of Rhodes_,
Have there enjoined them with an after fleet.

_1 Sena._ I, so I thought, how many, as you guess

_Mess._ Of _30_ sail, and now they do return
Their backward course, bearing with frank appearance
Their purposes towards _Cyprus_: Seignior _Montano_,
Your trusty and most valiant Servitor,
With his free duty recommends you thus.
And prays you to believe him.

_Du._ Tis certain then for _Cyprus_,

_Marcus Luccicos_ is not he in town?

_1 Sena._ He's now in _Florence_.

_Du._ Write from us to him post, post haste dispatch.

_Enter Brabantio, Othello, Roderigo, _Jago_, _Casio_, _Defdemona, and Officers._

_1 Sena._ Here comes _Brabantio_ and the valiant _Moore_.

_Du._ Valiant _Othello_, we must straight employ you,
Against the general enemy _Ottoman_;
I did not see you, welcome gentle Seignior,
We lackt your counsel, and your help to night.

_Bra._ So did I yours, good your Grace pardon me.
Neither my place, nor ought I heard of business
Hath rais'd me from my bed, not doth the general care.
Take hold of me, for my particular grief,
Is of so floodgate and ore-bearing nature,
That it engluts and swallows other sorrows,
And it is still in self.

_Du._ Why? what's the matter?

_Bra._ My daughter, _O_ my Daughter.

_All._ Dead?

_Bra._ I to me:
She is abus'd, stolen from me and corrupted,
By spels and medicines, bought of _Mountebancks_,
For nature so preposterously to erre,
(Being not deficient, blind or lame of sense,)
Sans witchcraft could not.

_Du._ Who ere he be, that in this foul proceeding
Hath thus beguild your daughter of her self,
And you of her, the bloody book of Law,
You shall your self read in the bitter letter,
After its own sense, ye tho our proper son
Stood in your action.

_Bra._ Humbly I thank your Grace;
Here is the man, this Moor, whom now it seems
Your special Mandate, for the State affairs
Hath hither brought.

_All._ We are very sorry for't.

_Du._ What in your own part can you say to this?

_Bra._ Nothing, but this is so.

_Oth._ Most potent, grave and reverend Seigniors,
My very noble and approv'd good Masters:
That I have tane away this old man's daughter,
It is most true: true, I have married her,
The very head and front of my offending,
Hath this extent no more. Rude I am in my speech,
And little blest with the set phrase of peace,
For since these arms of mine had seven years pith,
'Till now some nine moneths wafted, they have us'd
Their dearest action in the tented field;
And little of this great world can I speak,
More then pertains to feats of broyls, and battail,
And therefore little shall I grace my cause,
In speaking for my self; yet by your gracious patience,
I would a round unravish'd tale deliver,
Of my whole course of love, what drugs, what charms,
What conjuration, what mighty magick,
(For such proceedings am I charg'd withal:)
I won his Daughter.

_Bra._ A Maiden never bold,
Of spirit so still and quiet, that her motion
Blesht at her self: and she in spight of nature,
Of years, Country, credit, every thing,
To fall in love with what she fear'd to look on?
It is a judgment maim'd, and most imperfect,
That will confess, perfection so would erre
Against all rules of Nature, and must be driven
To find out practises of cunning hell,
Why this should be, I therefore vouch again,
That with some mixtures powerful ore the blood,
Or with some dram conjur'd to this effect,
He wrought upon her.

_Du._ To vouch this is no proof,
Without more certain and more overt test,
These are thin habits, and poor likelihoods,
Of modern seemings, you prefer against him.

_Sen._ But Othello speak,
the Moor of Venice.

Did you by indirect and forced courses,
Subdue and poyson this young Maids affections?
Or came it by request, and such fair question,
As soul to soul affordeth?

Oth. I do beseech you,
Send for the Lady to the Sagittary,
And let her speak of me before her Father;
If you do find me foul in her report,
The Trust, the Office, I do hold of you,
Not only take away, but let your sentence.
Even fall upon my life.

Du. Fetch Desdemona hither.

Oth. Ancient conduct them, you best know the place;
And till she come, as truly as to heaven.
I do confess the vices of my blood,
So justly to your grave ears Ie present;
How I did thrive in this fair Ladies love,
And the in mine...

Du. Say it Othello.

Oth. Her Father loved me; oft invited me,
Still questioned me the story of my life,
From year to year, the battels, feiges, fortunes:
That I have paff:
I ran it through, even from my boyifh days,
Toth' very moment that he bid me tell it:
Wherein I speak of most difastrous chances,
Of moving accidents, by flood and field;
Of hair-breadth scapes ith' imminent deadly breach;
Of being taken by the insolent so,
And fold to slavery; of my redemption thence,
And portance in my travels history;
Wherein of Antars vaft, and Desarts idle,
Rough quarries, rocks and hils, whose heads touch heaven,
It was my hint to speak, such was my process:
And of the Cannibals, that each other eat;
The Anthropophagie and men whose heads
Do grow beneath their shoulders: these to hear,
Would Desdemona seriously incline;
But still the house affairs would draw her thence,
Which ever as she could with haste dispatch,
Sheed come again, and with a greedy ear
Devoure up my discourse, which I observing,
Took once a pliant hour, and found good means
To draw from her a prayer of carfull heart,
That I would all my pilgrimage dilate,
Whereof by parfels she had something heard,
But not intreptively, I did consent,
And often did beguile her of her tears,
When I did speak of some distressful stroke
That my youth suffered: my story being done;
She gave me for my pains a world of sighs;
She swore faith 'twas strange, 'twas passing strange;
'Twas pitiful, 'twas wondrous pitiful;
She withheld she had not heard it, yet she willed
That heaven had made her such a man: she thanked me,
And bad me if I had a friend that loved her,
I should but teach him how to tell my story,
And that would woe her. Upon this heat I spake:
She lov'd me for the dangers I had past;
And I lov'd her that she did pity them,
This only is the witchcraft I have us'd:
Here comes the Lady,
Let her witnesse it.

Enter Desdemona, Jago, and the rest.

_Du._ I think this tale would win my Daughter to;
Good _Brabantia_, take up this mangled matter at the best,
Men do their broken weapons rather use,
Then their bare hands.

_Bra._ I pray you hear her speak.
If she confess that she was half the wooer,
Destruction light on me, if my bad blame
Light on the man. Come hither gentle _Mistress_:
Do you perceive in all this noble company,
Where most you owe obedience?

_Def._ My noble father,
I do perceive here a divided duty:
To you I am bound for life and education;
My life and education both do learn me
How to respect you, you are the Lord of duty,
I am hitherto your daughter, But here's my husband:
And so much duty as my mother shewed
To you, preferring you before her father,
So much I challenge, that I may profess,
Due to the Moore my Lord.

_Bra._ God bu'y, I ha done:
Please it your Grace, on to the State affairs,
I had rather to adopt a child than get it;
Come hither _Moore_: I here do give thee that, with all my heart,
Which but thou hast already, with all my heart
I would keep from thee: for your sake (_Jewel,_)
I am glad at soul, I have no other child,
For thy escape would teach me tyranny,
To hang clogs on 'em, I have done my Lord.

_Du._ Let me speak like your self, and lay a sentence
Which as a greefe or ftep may help thefe lovers
Into your favour.
When remedies are past, the griefs are ended,
By feeing the worst, which late on hopes depended,
To mourn a mischief that is past and gone,
Is the next way to draw more mischief on:
What cannot be preferv'd when fortune takes,
Patience her injury a mockery makes.
The rob'd that smiles, steals something from the thief,
He robs himself that spends a bootlefs grief.

_Bra._ So let the Turk of Cyprus us beguile.
We lose it not fo long as we can smile;
He bears the sentence well that nothing bears,
But the free comfort, which from thence he hears:
But he bears both the sentence and the sorrow,
That to pay grief, must of poor patience borrow.
These sentences to sugar, or to gall,
Being strong on both sides, are equivocal:
But words are words, I never yet did hear,
That the bruised heart was pierced through the ear.
Beleech you now, to the affairs of the state.

_Du._ The Turk with moft mighty preparation makes for Cyprus: Othello, the fortitude of the place is best known to you, and though we have there a Substitute of moft allowed fufficiency, yet opinion, a sovereignt iftreffs of effects, throws a more faper voice on you; you muft therefore be content to flubber the gloss of your new fortunes, with this more stubborn and boifterous expedition.

_Oth._ The tyrant custom, moft grave Senators,
Hath made the flinty and steel Cooch of war,
My thrice-driven bed of down: I do agnize
A natural and prompt alacrity,
I find in hardness and do undertake
This prcfent war againft the Ottomites:
Most humbly therefore, bending to your State,
I crave fit disposition for my wife,
Due reference of place and exhibition,
With fuch accommodation and befort,
As leves with her breeding.

_Du._ If you please bee't at her fathers.
_Bra._ I le not have it fo.

_Oth._ Nor I.

_Def._ Nor I, I would not there reside,
To put my father in impatient thoughts,
By being in his eye: moft gracious Duke,
To my unfolding lend a gracious ear,

_C 3_
And let me find a charter in your voyce,
T’affit my simpleness.——

_Du._ What would you _Desdemona_?

_Def._ That I did love the Moore to live with him,

My down right violence, and storm of Fortunes,
May trumpet to the world; my hearts subdued,
Even to the very quality of my Lord:
I saw _Othello’s_ visage in his minde,
And to his Honors, and his valiant parts
Did I my soul and fortunes consecrate.

So that dear Lords, If I be left behinde,
A Moth of peace, and he goe to the warre,
The rites for which I love him, are bereft me,
And I a heavy interim shall support,
By his dear absence; let me goe with him.

_Oth._ Your voyces Lords: beseech you let her will Have a free way.

Vouch with me Heaven, I therefore beg it not
To please the palate of my appetite,
Nor to comply with heat, the young affects.
In my defunct, and proper satisfaction,
But to be free and bounteous to her mind,
And heaven defend your good souls that you think
I will your serious and good business-scant,
For heis with me;——no, when light wing’d toyes,
And feather’d _Cupid_ foyls with wanton dulnes,
My speculative and active instruments,
That my disports, corrupt and taint my business,
Let Hufwivses make a Skellet of my Helm,
And all indigne and base adversities,
Make head against my reputation.

_Du._ Be it, as you shall privately determine,
Either for her stay or going, the affair cries haste.
And speed must answer, you must hence to night.

_Def._ To night my Lord?

_Du._ This night. _Oth._ With all my heart.

_Du._ At nine i’th morning here we’ll meet again.

_Othello_ leave some officer behind,
And he shall our Commission bring to you,
With such things else of quality and respect,
As doth import you.

_Oth._ Pleaue your Grace, my Ancient,
A man he is of honesty and trust;
To his conveyance I’affigne my wife,
With what else needful your good Grace shall think.

To be sent after me.

_Du._ Let it be so.

Good
Good night to every one, and noble Seignior,
If virtue no delighted beauty lack,
Your Son in law is far more fair than black.

Sena. Adieu brave Moor, use Desdemona well.

Brab. Look to her Moore, if thou haft eyes to see.

She has deceiv'd her father, and may thee.

Oth. My life upon her faith. Honest Jago,
My Desdemona must I leave to thee,
I prethee let thy wife attend on her,
And bring her after in the best advantage;
Come Desdemona, I have but an hour
Of love, of worldly matters and direction,
To spend with thee, we must obey the time.

Rod. Jago.

Jago. What saith thou noble heart?

Rod. What will I do thinkst thou?

Jago. Why goe to bed and sleep,

Rod. I will incontinently drown my self.

Jago. Well, if thou doest, I shall never love thee after it,

Why thou silly Gentleman.

Rod. It is sillinefs to live, when to live is a torment, and then we have a precription, to dye when death is our Physitian.

Jago. O villainous, I ha look'd upon the world for four times seven years, and since I could distinguish between a benefit, and an injury, I never found a man that knew how to love himself: ere I would say I would drown my self, for the love of a Ginny Hen, I would change my humanity with a Baboone.

Rod. What should I doe? I confefs it is my shame to be so fond, but it is not in my virtue to amend it.

Jago. Virtue, a fig, 'tis in our selves, that we are thus, or thus, our bodies are gardens, to the which our wills are Gardiners, so that if we will plant Nettles, or sow Lettice, set Ilop, and weed up Time; supply it with one gender of hearbs, or distract it with many; either to have it sterrill with idlenefs, or manur'd with industry, why the power, and corrigible Authority of this, lies in our wills. If the ballance of our lives had not one scale of reafon, to poyse another of fensuality; the blood and basenes of our natures, would conduct us to moft preposterous conclusions. But we have reafon to coole our raging motions, our carnal ftings, our unbitted lufts; whereof I take this that you call love to be a Sect, or Syen.

Rod. It cannot be.

Jago. It is meerey a luft of the blood, and a permission of the will; Come, be a man; drown thy self; drowne Cats, and blinde Puppies: I profefs me thy friend, and I confefs me knit to thy deferving, with Cables of perdurable toughnefs; I could never better heed thee then now. Put money in thy purfe; follow these wars, defeat thy favour with an usurp'd beard; I say, put money in thy purfe. It cannot be, that Desdemona should long long continue her love unto the Moor,—put money in thy purse,—nor he his to her; it was a violent commencement, and thou shalt see an answerable sequestration: put but money in thy purse.—These Moors are changeable in their wills.—Fill thy purse with money. The food that to him now is as luscious as Locris, shall be to him shortly as bitter as Coloquintida: She must change for youth; when she is fated with his body, she will find the error of her choice; she must have change, she must. Therefore put money in thy purse: If thou wilt needs damn thy self, do it a more dilicate way then drowning; make all the money thou canst. If sanctimony, and a frail vow, betwixt an erring Barbarian, and a super-subtle Venetian, be not too hard for my wits, and all the tribe of hell, thou wilt enjoy her; therefore make money,—a pox a drowning, tis clean out of the way; seek thou rather to be hang’d in complaining thy joy, then to be drowned, and go without her.

Rod. Wilt thou be fast to my hopes, if I depend on the issue?

Jag. Thou art sure of me—go, make money—I have told thee often, and I tell thee again, and again, I hate the Moor, my caufe is hearted, thine has no less reason, let us be conjunctive in our revenge against him: If thou canst cuckold him, thou dost thy self a pleasure, me a sport. There are many events in the womb of Time, which will be delivered. Traverse, go, provide thy money, we will have more of this to morrow, adieu.

Rod. Where shall we meet i’th’ morning?

Jag. At my lodging.

Rod. I’ll be with thee betimes.

Jag. Go to, farewell:—do you hear Roderigo?

Rod. What say you?

Jag. No more of drowning, do you hear?

Rod. I am chang’d, I’ll go fell all my land.

Exit Roderigo.

Jag. Thus do I ever make my fool my purse:
For I mine own gain’d knowledge should prophane
If I would time expend with such a snip,
But for my sport and profit: I hate the Moor,
And it is thought abroad, that twixt my sheets
Ha’s done my Office; I know not if ’t be true—
Yet I, for meek suspicion in that kind,
Will do, as if for surety: he holds me well,
The better shall my purpose work on him.
Cassio’s a proper man, let me see now,
To get this place, and to plum up my will,
A double knavery—how, how,—let me see,
After some time, to abuse Othello’s ear,
That he is too familiar with his wife:
He has a peron and a smooth dispose,
To be suspected, fram’d to make woman falce:
The Moor is of a free and open nature,
the Moor of Venice.

That thinks men honest, that but seems to be so:
And will as tenderly be led bith' nofe—as Affes are:
Tha't, it is ingender'd: Hell and night
Must bring this monstrous birth to the worlds light. —Exit.

Aetas Secundus, Scena prima.

Enter Montanio, Governor of Cyprus, with two other Gentlemen.

Montanio.

What from the Cape can you discern at Sea?
1 Gent. Nothing at all, it is a high wrought flood,
I cannot 'twixt the heaven and the main
Defcry a fail.

Mon. Methinks the wind does speakaloud at land,
A fuller blast ne'r shook our battlements:
If it ha ruftiand fo upon the Sea,
What ribs of Oak, when mountain melt on them,
Can hold the mortices,—What shall we hear of this?

2 Gent. A segregation of the Turkish fleet:
For do but fland upon the foaming shore,
The chiding billows seems to pelt the clouds,
The wind shak'd surge, with high and monstrous main
Seems to caft water on the burning Bear,
And quench the guards of th'ever fired pole,
I never did like moleftation view,
On the enchafted flood.

Mon. If that the Turkish Fleet
Be not in shelter'd, and embayed, they are drown'd,
It is impossible to bear it out.

Enter a third Gentleman.

3 Gent. News Lads, your wars are done:
The desperate Tempelt hath fo bang'd the Turk,
That their desigment haults:
A noble ship of Venice,
Hath seen a grievous wrack and sufferance
On most part of their Fleet.

Mon. How, is this true?

3 Gent. The ship is here put in:
A Veroncexa, Michael Caffio,
Lieutenant to the warlike Moor Othello,
Is come a shore: the Moor himself at Sea,
And is in full commission here for Cyprus.

Mon. I am glad on't, 'tis a worthy Governour.

3 Gent. But this fame Cassio, tho he speake of comfort,
Touching the Turkish losses, yet he looks sadly,
And prays the Moor be safe, for they were parted,
With foul and violent Tempest.

Mon. Pray heaven he be:
For I have serv'd him, and the man commands.
Like a full Soldier:
Lets to the sea side, ho,
As well to see the Vessel that's come in,
As to throw out our eyes for brave Othello,
Even till we make the Main and th'Air all blew,
An indistinct regard.

3. Gent. Come, let's do so,
For every minute is expectancy
Of more arrivance.

Cass. Thanks to the valiant of this Isle,
That do approve the Moor, and let the heavens,
Give him defence against their Elements.
For I have lost him on a dangerous sea.

Mon. Is he well ship't?

Cass. His Bark is stoutly timbered, and is Pilot,
Of very expert and approv'd allowance,
Therefore my hope's (not surfeited to death)
Stand in bold sure

Mess. A fail, a fail, a fail.

Cass. What noise?

Mess. The Town is empty, on the brow o' th' sea,
Stands ranks of people, and they cry a fail.

2. Gent. They do discharge the shot of courteous,

Our friend at least.

Cass. I pray you sir go forth
And give us truth, who 'tis that is arriv'd.

2. Gent. I shall.

Mon. But good Lievent, is your General wiv'd?

Cass. Most fortunately, he hath attiv'd a maid,
That parragons description and wild fame;
One that excels the quips of blazoning pens;
And in the essental vesture of creation,
Does bear an excellency: — now, who has put in?

Enter Cassio

Enter a Messenger

A shot

Exit.
Enter 2 Gentleman.

2 Gent. 'Tis one Jago, Ancient to the General;
He has had most favourable and happy speed,
Tempests themselves, high seas, and howling winds,
The guttered rocks, and congregated sands,
Traitors enfeep'd, to clog the guiltless Keel,
As having sense of beauty, do omit
Their common natures, letting go safely by
The divine Desdemona.

Mon. What is she?

Cas. She that I speak of, our great Captains Captain,
Left in the conduct of the bold Jago,
Whose footing here anticipates our thoughts
A fennights speed—great Jove Othello guard,
And swell his sail with thine own powerful breath,
That he may blest this Bay with his tall ship,
And swiftly come to Desdemona's arms

Enter Desdemona, Jago, Emilla, and Roderigo.

Give renew'd fire,
To our extincted spirits:
And bring all Cyprus comfort,—O behold
The riches of the ship is come on shore.
Ye men of Cyprus, let her have your knees:
Hail to the Lady: and the grace of heaven,
Before, behind thee, and on every hand,
Enwheel thee round.

Def. I thank you valiant Caffo:
What tidings can you tell me of my Lord?

Cas. He is not yet arrived, nor know I ought,
But that he's well, and will be shortly here.

Def. O but I fear,—how lost you company?

Cas. The great contention of the sea and skies
Parted our fellowship: but hark a sail.

2 Gent. They give their greeting to the Citadel,
This likewise is a friend.

Cas. See for the news:
Good Ancient you are welcome, welcome Mistress,
Let it not gall your patience, good Jago,
That I extend my manners, 'tis my breeding,
That gives me this bold shew of courteous.

Jag. Sir, would the give you so much of her lips,
As of her tongue she has bestowed on me,
You'd have enough.
Des. Alas! she has no speech.

Jag. In faith too much:
I find it still, for when I have leave to sleep,
Mary, before your Ladyship I grant,
She puts her tongue a little in her heart,
And chides with thinking.

Em. You ha little cause to say so.

Jag. Come on, come on, you are Pictures out of dores:
Bells in your Parlor: Wild-cats in your Kitchens:
Saints in your injuries: Divels being offended:
Players in your house-wifery: and house-wives in your beds.

Des. O he upon thee flanderer.

Jag. Nay, it is true, or else I am a Turk,
You rise to play: and goe to bed to work.

Em. You shall not write my prais.

Jag. No, let me not.

Des. What wouldst thou write of me?
If thou shouldst praise me?

Jag. O gentle Lady, do not put me to't;
For I am nothing: if not critical.

Des. Come on, assay—there's one gone to the Harbour.

Jag. I Madam.

Des. I am not merry: but I do beguile
The thing I am, by seeming otherwise:
Come, how wouldst thou praise me?

Jag. I am about it: but indeed my invention
Comes from my pate, as birdlime does from freeze,
It plucks out braine and all: but my Muse labours,
And thus she is delivered:

If she be fair and wise: fairness and wit;
The one's for use, the other useth it.

Des. Well praise'd: how if she be black and witty?

Jag. If she be black, and there to have a wit,
She'll find a white, that shall her blackness fit.

Des. Worse and worse.

Em. How if fair and foolish?

Jag. She never yet was foolish, that was fair,
For even her folly helps her to an Heir.

Des. These are old Paradoxes: to make fools laugh in th' Alehouse: What miserable praise hast thou for her,
That's soul and foolish?

Jag. There's none so foul, and foolish thereunto;
But does soul pranks, which fair and wise ones do.

Des. O heavy ignorance that praises the worst best: but what praise couldst thou bestow on a deserving woman? indeed? one, that in the authority of her merits, did justly put on the vouch of very malice it felt?
Jag. She that was ever fair, and never proud,

Had tongue at will, and yet was never loud,

Never lackt gold, and yet went never gay,

Fled from her wish, and yet said, now I may:

She that being angred, her revenge being nigh,

Bad her wrong stay, and her displeasure flye

She that in wiseome never was so frail,

To change the Godshead for the Salmons tail:

She that could think, and ne're disclose her mind,

See Sutors following, and not look behind:

She was a wight, (if ever such wight were,)

Def. To do what?

Jag. To suckle fools, and chronicle small Beeere.

Def. O most lame and impotent conclusion:

Do not learn of him Emilia, tho be thy husband:

How say you Cassio, is he not a most prophane and liberal Counsellour.

Cassio. He speaks home Madam, you may rellish him.

More in the Souldier than in the Scholler.

Jag. He takes her by the palme; I well fed, whisper; with as little a webb as this, will I enshare as great a flie as Cassio. I smile upon her, doe: I will catch you in your own Courtship: you say true, 'tis so indeed. If such tricks as these strip you out of your Lieutenantry, it had been better you had not rift your three fingers so oft, which now again, you are most apt to play the fir in a very good well kist, and excellent courtesie; 'tis so indeed: yet again, your fingers at your lips? would they were Clitterpipes for your fake.—The Moore, I know his Trumpet.

[Trumpet within.]

Enter Othello, and Attendants.

Cassio. 'Tis truly so.

Def. Lets meet him, and receive him.

Cassio. Loc, where he comes.

Othello. O my fair Warriour.

Def. My dear Othello.

Othello. It gives me wonder, great as my content,

To see you here before me: O my soul's joy,

If after every tempest, come such calmness,

May the winds blow, till they have wakened death;

And let the labouring Bark clime hills of Seas,

Olympus high, and duck again as low,

As Hell's from Heaven; If it were now to dye,

'Twere now to be most happy, for I fear

My Soul hath her content so absolute,

That not another comfort, like to this

Succeeds in unknown Fate.

Def. The Heavens forbid.

But that our loves and comforts should increase,

Even as our dayes do grow.
Oth: Amen to that, sweet Powers:
I cannot speak enough of this content,
It stops me here, it is too much of joy:
And this, and this, the greatest discord be, \[kiss.\]
That ere our hearts should make.

Jag. O, you are well-tun'd now,
But I'le set down the pegs, that makes this musick,
As honest as I am.

Oth. Come, let us to the Castle:
News friends, our wars are done, the Turks are drown'd.
How does my old acquaintance of this Isle?
Hunty, you shall be well desir'd in Cyprus;
I have found great love amongst th'm: O my sweet:
I prattle out of fashion, and I dote,
In mine own comforts: I prethee good Jag,
Go to the Bay, and disimbarke my Cofters;
Bring thou the Master to the Citadel:
He is a good one, and his worthiness,
Does challenge much respect, come Desdemona.

Once more well met at Cyprus.

Exeunt.

Jag. Do thou meet me presently at the Harbour: come hither, if thou beest valiant, (as they say, base men being in love, have then a Nobility in their natures, more than is native to them,)—let me, the Lieutenant to night watches on the Court of Guard: first I will tell thee this, Desdemona is directly in love with him.

Rod. With him? why 'tis not possible,

Jag. Lay thy finger thus, and let thy Soul be instruct'd: mark me, with what violence the first lov'd the Moore, but for bragging, and telling her fantatitical lies; and will the love him still for prating? let not the discreet heart think it. Her eye must be fed, and what delight shall she have to look on the Devil? When the blood is made dull with the act of sport, there should be a game to inflame it, and give faciety a fresh appetite. Loveliness in favour, sympathy in years, manners, and beauties; all which the Moore is defective in:
now for want of these requir'd conveniences, her delicate tenderness will find its self abus'd, begin to heave the gorge, distemper and abhor the Moor, very nature will instruct her to it, and compel her to some second choice: Now Sir, this granted, as it is most pregnant and unforced position, who stands so eminently in the degree of this fortune, as Caffio does? a knave very voluble, no farther confcionable, than in putting on the meer form of civil and humane seemings, for the better compalining of his falt and most hidden loose affections:
A subtle slippery Knave, a finder out of occasions; that has an eye, can flamp and counterfeit advantages, tho' true advantage never present it self. Besides, the Knave is handsome, young, and hath all those requisites in him that folly and green minds look after: a pestilent compleat knave, and the woman has found him already.

Rod. I cannot believe that in her, she's full of most blest condition.

Jag. Blest figs end; the wine she drinks is made of grapes: if she had been Bleff,
blest, he would never have lov'd the Moore, Didst thou not see her paddle with the palm of his hand? didst not marke that?

Rod. Yes, but that was but courtese.

Jag. Lechery, by this hand; an Indecent and obscure prologue to the History, of lust and foul thoughts: they met so near with their lips, that their breaths embraced together, villanous thoughts, when these mutualities so marshall the way; hand at hand comes Rodrigo, the matter, and the main exercice, the incorporate conclusion. But Sir, be you rul'd by me, I have brought you from Venice; watch you to night, for command, I'le lay't upon you. Cassio knows you not, I'le not be far from you, do you find some occasion to anger Cassio, either by speaking too loud, or tainting his discipline, or from what other course you please; which the time shall more favourable minister.

Rod. Well.

Jag. Sir he is rash, and very sudden in choler, and haply with his Trunchen may strike at you; provoke him that he may, for even out of that, will I cause these of Cyprus to mutiny, whose qualification shall come into no true taste again't, but by the displanting of Cassio: So shall you have a shorter journey to your desires, by the means I shall then have to prefer them, and the impediment most patiently remov'd, without which there were no expectation of our prosperity.

Rod. I will do this, if I can bring it to any opportunity.

Jag. I warrant thee, meet me by and by at the Cittadel; I must fetch his necessaries a shore.—Farewel.

Rod. Adieu.

Jag. That Cassio loves her, I do well believe it; That the loves him, 'tis apt and of great credit; The Moore howbe't, that I endure him not, Is of a constant, noble, loving nature; And I dare think, he'll prove to Desdemona A most dear Husband; now I do love her too, Not out of absolute lust, (tho peradventure, I stand accountable for as great a sin,) But partly lead to diet my revenge, For that I do suspect the lustful Moore, Hath leap'd into my heart, the thought whereof Doth like a poisonous Mineral gnaw my inwards; And nothing can, nor shall content my Soul, Till I am even'd with him, wife for wife; Or failing so, yet that I put the Moore, At leaft, into a jealousie so strong, That judgement cannot cure; which thing to do, If this poor trash of Venice, whom I trace, For his quick hunting, stand the putting on, I'le have our Michael Cassio on the hip, Abuse him to the Moore, in the ranke garbe, (For I fear Cassio, with my night-cap to) Make the Moore thank me, love me, and reward me,
For making him egregiously an Ais,
And practicing upon his peace and quiet,
Even to madness:—’tis here, but yet confus’d;
Knave, ricks, plain air is never seen, till us’d.

Exit.

Enter Othello’s Herald, reading a Proclamation.

It is Othello’s pleasure, our noble and valiant General, that upon certain tidings now arrived, importing the meer perdition of the Turkish Fleet; that every man put himself into triumph; some to dance, some make Bonfires: each man to what sport and Revels his addiction leads him; for besides these beneficial News, it is the celebration of his Nuptials: So much was his pleasure should be proclaimed. All Offices are open, and there is full liberty, from this present hour of live, till the bell hath told eleven. Heaven bless the Isle of Cyprus, and our noble General Othello,

Enter Othello, Cassio, and Desdemona.

Oth. Good Michael look you to the guard to night.
Let’s teach our selves that honourable flop,
Not to out-sport discretion.

Cas. Jago hath direction what to do:
But notwithstanding, with my personal eye
Will I look to it.

Oth. Jago is most honest.
Michael goodnight, to morrow with your earlist,
Let me have speech with you, come my dear love,
The purchase made, the fruits are to ensue,
That profits yet to come ’twixt me and you,
Good night.

Enter Jago.

Cas. Welcome Jago, we must to the watch.

Jag. Not this hour Lieutenant, ’tis not yet ten a Clock: our General cast us thus early for the love of his Desdemona, who let us not therefore blame, he hath not yet made wanton the night with her; and she is sport for Jove.

Cas. She is a most exquisite Lady.

Jag. And I’le warrant her full of game.

Cas. Indeed she is a most fresh and delicate creature.

Jag. What an eye she has?

Methinks it sounds a parly of provocation.

Cas. An inviting eye, and yet methinks right modest.

Jag. And when she speaks, ’tis an Alarm to love.

Cas. She is indeed perfection.

Jag. Well, happiness to their sheets——come Lieutenant, I have a stope of Wine, and here without are a brace of Cyprus Gallants, that would fain have a measure to the health of the black Othello.

Cas.
Not to night, good Iago; I have very poor and unhappy brains for drinking: I could well with courtseie would invent some other custome of entertainment.

I ha drunk but one cup to night, and that was craftily qualified to, and behold what innovation it makes here: I am unfortunate in the infirmity, and dare not task my weaknefs with any more.

What man, 'tis a night of Revels, the Gallants desire it.

Here at the dore, I pray you call them in.

If I can fasten but one cup upon him.

With that which he hath drunk to night already,

As my young Mistrefs dog:—Nay my fick fool Roderigo,

To Desdemona, hath to night carouf.

Potations pottle deep, and he's to watch:

That hold their honour in a wary distance,

Have I to night plentiful with flowing cups,

And the watch too: now 'mongst this flock of drunkards,

That may offend the Ifle;

Enter Montanio, Cassio,

But here they come:

If consequence do but approve my dream,

My boat fails freely, both with wind and stream.

Fore God they have given me a rouse already.

Good faith a little one, not past a pint,

As I am a Soldier.

Some wine hoe:

And let me the Cannikin clink, clink,

A Soldier's a man, a life's but a span,

Why then let a Soldier drink—Some wine boys.

Fore heaven an excellent song

I learn'd it in England, where indeed they are most potent in potting:

your Dane: your Germane, and your swag-bellied Hollander, (drink ho,) are nothing to your English.

Is your English man so exquisite in his drinking?

Why, he drinks you with facility, your Dane dead drunk: he sweats not to overthrow your Almain; he gives your Hollander a vomit, ere the next pottle can be fill'd

To the health of our General.

I am for it Lieutenant, and I will do you justice.

O sweet England.—
King Stephen was and a worthy Peer,
His breeches cost him but a Crown,
He held 'em six pence all to dear,
With that he call'd the Taylor round;
He was a Wight of high Renown,
And thou art but of low degree,
'Tis pride that pulls the Country down.
Then take shame auld cloke about thee.—Some wine ho.

Cas. Why, this is a more exquisite song than the other.

Jag. Will you hear't again.

Cas. No, for I hold him unworthy of his place, that does those things well,

Heaven's above all, and there be Souls that must be saved.

Jag. It is true good Lieutenant.

Cas. For mine own part, no offence to the General, nor any man of quality, I hope to be saved.

Jag. And so do I Lieutenant.

Cas. I, but by your leave, not before me; the Lieutenant is to be saved before the Ancient, Let's ha no more of this, let's to our affairs: forgive us our fins: Gentlemen, let's look to our business: do not think Gentlemen I am drunk, this is my Ancient, this is my right hand; and this is my left hand: I am not drunk now, I can stand well enough, and speak well enough.

All. Excellent well.

Cas. Why very well then: you must not think then that I am drunk. [Exit.

Mon. To the platform Misters. Come let's set the watch.

Jag. You see this fellow that is gone before,

He is a Souldier fit to stand by Casar,
And give direction: and do but see his vice;
'Tis to his virtue, a just equinox,
The one as long as th'other: 'tis pity of him,
I fear the truth, Othello put him in,
On some odd time of his infirmity,
Will shake this Island.

Mon. But is he often thus.

Jag. 'Tis evermore the Prologue to his sleep,
He'll watch the horolodge a double set,
If drink rock not his cradle.

Mon. 'Twere well the General were put in mind of it,
Perhaps he sees it not, or his good nature
Praises the virtue that appears in Caffio,
And looks not on his evils: is not this true?

Jag. How now Roderigo.

Enter Roderigo.

I pray you after the Lieutenant go.

Mon. And 'tis great pity that the noble Moore,
Should hazard such a place, as his own second.
With one of an ingraft infirmity:
It were an honest action to lay so to the Moore.
Jag. Not I, for this fair Island:
I do love Caffio well, and would do much,
To cure him of this evil: but hark, what noise.

Enter Caffio, driving in Roderigo.

Caf. You rogue, you rascall.
Mon. What's the matter Lieutenant?
Caf. A knave, teach me my duty: but I'll beat the knave into a wicker bottle.
Rod. Beat me?
Caf. Dost thou prate rogue?
Mon. Good Lieutenant; pray Sir hold your hand.
Caf. Let me go Sir, or I'll knock you o're the mazzard.
Mon. Come, come, you are drunk.
Caf. Drunk? [they fight.
Jag. Away I say, go out, and cry a mutiny. Exit Rod.

Nay good Lieutenant: God's-will Gentlemen,
Help ho, Lieutenant: Sir Montanio, Sir,
Help Masters, here's a goodly watch indeed:
Who's that that rings the Bell? Diablo—ho,
The Town will rise, fie, fie, Lieutenant hold,
You will be tham'd for ever.

Enter Othello, and Gentlemen with weapons

Oth. What's the matter here?
Mon. I bleed still, I am hurt to the death. [he faints.
Oth. Hold for your lives.
Jag. Hold, hold Lieutenant, Sir Montanio, Gentlemen,
Have you forgot all place of fence and duty:
Hold the General speaks to you; hold, hold, for shame.
Oth. Why how now ho, from whence arises this?
Are we turn'd Turks, and to ourselves do that,
Which Heaven has forbid the Ottamites:
For Christian shame, put by this barbarous brawle;
He that flirs next, to carve for his own rage,
Holds his soul light, he dyes upon his motion:
Silence that dreadful Bell, it frights the Isle
From her propriety: what's the matter masters?
Honest Jag., that looks dead with grieving,
Speak, who began this, on thy love I charge thee.
Jag. I do not know, friends all but now, even now,
In quarter, and in terms, like bride and groom,
Dievting them to bed, and then but now,
(As if some Planet had unwitted men,)
Swords out and tilting one at others breast,
In opposition bloody, I cannot speak
Any beginning to this peevish odds;
And would in action glorious, I had lost
Those legs, that brought me to a part of it.

Oth. How came it Michael, you were thus forgot?

Caf. I pray you pardon me, I cannot speak.

Oth, Worthy Montanio, you were wont to be civil;
The gravity and filleness of your youth
The world hath noted, and your name is great,
In mouths of wisest censure, What's the matter;
That you unlace your reputation thus,
And spend your rich opinion, for the name
Of a night brawler? give me answer to't?

Mon. Worthy Othello, I am hurt to danger,
Your Officer Jago can inform you,
While I spare speech, which something now offends me,
Of all that I do know, nor know I ought
By me, that's said or done amiss this night;
Unleas self-charity be sometime a vice,
And to defend our selves it be a sin,
When violence assails us.

Oth. Now by Heaven
My blood begins my safer guides to rule,
And passion having my best judgement cool'd,
Assayes to lead the way; If once I stir,
Or do but lift this Arm the best of you
Shall sink in my rebuke: give me to know
How this foul rout began, who set it on,
And he that is approv'd in this offence;
Tho he had twinn'd with me, both at a birth,
Shall loose me; what, in a Town of war,
Yet wild, the peoples hearts brim full of fear,
To mannage private and domestick quarrels,
In night, and on the Court and guard of safety?
'Tis monstrous. Jago, who began?

Mon. If partiality align'd, or league in office
Thou dost deliver more or lesse than truth,
Thou art no Souldier.

Jag. Touch me not so near,
I had rather ha' this tongue out of my mouth.
Then it should do offence to Michael Cassio,
Yet I perswade my self to speak the truth.
Shall nothing wrong him. Thus it is General;
Montanio and my self being in speech,
There comes a fellow, crying out for help,
And Cassio following him with determin'd Iword,
To execute upon him: Sir this Gentleman
Steps into Caffio, and intreats his pause;
My self the crying fellow did pursue,
Left by his clamor, as it so fell out,
The Town might fall in fright: he swift of foot,
Out-ran my purpose; and I return the rather,
For that I heard the clink and fall of swords;
And Caffio high in oath, which till to night,
I ne're might say before: when I came back,
For this was brief, I found them close together,
At blow and thrust, even as a leg they were,
When you your self did part them.
More of this matter can I not report,
But men are men, the best sometimes forget:
The Caffio did some little wrong to him,
As men in rage strike those that wish them best;
Yet surely Caffio, I believe receiv’d
From him that fled, some strange indignity,
Which patience could not pass.

Oth. I know Jago,
Thy honesty and love doth mince this matter,
Making it light to Caffio: Caffio, I love thee,
But never more be Officer of mine.
Look if my gentle love be not rais’d up:

Enter Desdemona, with others.

I’ll make thee an example.

Des. What’s the matter?

Oth. All’s well now sweeting:

Come away to bed: Sir, for your hurts,

My self will be your Surgeon; lead him off;

Jago, look with care about the Town,

And silence those whom this vile braul distracted.

Come Desdemona, ’tis the Souldiers life,

To have their balmy slumbets wak’d with strife,

Jag. What, are you hurt Lieutenant?

Exit Moor, Desdemona, and Attendants.

Cas. I, past all Surgery.

Jag. Marry Heaven forbid.

Cas. Reputation, reputation, ho I lost my reputation:

I ha lost the immortal part Sir of my self,
And what remains is bestial, my reputation,

Jago, my reputation.
Jag. As I am an honest man, I thought you had receiv’d some bodily wound, there is more offence in that, then in Reputation: reputation is an idle and most false imposition, oft got without merit, and lost without deserving: You have lost no reputation at all, unless you repute yourself such a loser; what man, there are ways to recover the General agent: you are but now cast in his mood, a punishment more in policy, then in malice, even so, as one would beat his incapable dog, to affright an imperious Lion: sue to him again, and he’s yours.

Caf. I will rather sue to be despis’d, then to deceive so good a Commander, with so light, so drunken, and disresect an Officer. Drunk! and speak parrot! and squabble, swagger, swear! and discourse sullian with ones one shaddow, O thou invisible spirit of wine, if thou hate no name to be known by, let us call thee Devil.

Jag. What was he that you followed with your sword? What had he done to you?

Caf. I know not.

Jag. Is’t possible?

Caf. I remember a mass of things, but nothing distinctly: a quarrel, but nothing wherefore. O that men should put an enemy in their mouths, to steal away their brains; that we should with joy revel, pleasure, and applause, transform our selves into beasts.

Jag. Why, but you are now well enough: how came you thus recovered?

Caf. It hath pleas’d the devil drunkenness, to give place to the devil wrath; one unperfectness shews me another, to make me frankly despise myself.

Jag. Come, you are too severe a moraler; as the time, the place, the condition of this Country stands, I could heartily wish, this had not so befaln; but since it is as it is, mend it for your own good.

Caf. I will ask him for my place again, he shall tell me I am a drunkard: had I as many mouths as Hydra, such an answer would stop ’em all; to be now a sensible man, by and by a fool, and presently a beast: every inordinate cup is unblest, and the ingredience a devil.

Jag. Come, come, good wine is a good familiar creature, if it be well us’d; exclaim no more against it; and good Lieuentant, I think you think I love you.

Caf. I have well approv’d it Sir.—I drunk?

Jag. You, or any man living may be drunk at some time man: Ple tell you what you shall do, —our Generals wife is now the General; I may say so in this respect, for that he has devoted and given up himself to the contemplation, mark and devotion of her parts and graces. Confess your self freely to her, importune her, she’ll help to put you into your place again: she is so free, so kind, so apt so blessed a disposition, that she holds it a vice in her goodness, not to do more than she is request’d. This broken joynt between you and her husband, intreat her to splinter, and my fortunes against any lay, worth naming, this crack of your love shall grow stronger then’t was before.

Caf. You advise me well.
Jag. 1 protest in the sincerity of love and honest kindness.

Caf. I think it freely, and betimes in the morning, will I beseech the virtuous Desdemona, to undertake for me: I am desperate of my fortunes, if they check me here.

Jag. You are in the right:
Good night Lieutenant, I must to the watch.

Caf. Good night honest Jag.

Jag. And what's he then, that says I play the villain,

When this advice is free I give, and honest,
Probal to thinking, and indeed the course,
To win the Moor agen? For 'tis most ease.
The inclining Desdemona to subdue,
In any honest suit she's fram'd as fruitful;
As the free Elements: and then for her.
To win the Moor, were't to renounce his baptism,

All seals and symbols of redeemed sin,
His foul is so infetter'd to her love,
That she may make, unmake, do what she list,
Even as her appetite shall play the god
With his weak function: how am I then a Villain,

To counsel Caffio to this parrallel course,
Directly to his good? divinity of hell,
When devils will their blackest sins put on,
They do suggest at first with heavenly fhews,
As I do now: for whilst this honest fool

Plays Desdemona to repair his fortunes,

And she for him, pleads strongly to the Moor;
I'd pour this pestilence into his ear,
That she repeals him for her bodies lust;
And by how much she strives to do him good,
She shall undo her credit with the Moor;
So will I turn her vertue into pitch,
And out of her own goodness, make the net:
That shall enmeeh them all: Enter Roderigo.

How now Roderigo?

Red. I do follow here in the chase, not like a hound that hunts, but one that fills up the cry: my money is almost spent, I ha been to night exceedingly well cudgell'd; I think the issue will be, I shall have so much experience for my pains, and so no money at all, and with a little more wit return to Venice.

Jag. How poor are they, that have not patience?
What wound did ever heal but by degrees?
Thou knowest we work by wit, and not by witchcraft,
And wit depends on dilatory time.
Does not go well? Caffio has beaten thee,
And thou, by that small hurt, hath cather'd Caffio,
Tho other things grow fair against the sun,
Yet fruits that blossom first, will first be ripe;
Content thy self a while; by 'th' mass 'tis morning;
Pleasure, and action, make the hours seem short:
Retire thee, go where thou art billited;
Away I say, thou shalt know more hereafter:
Nay get thee gone: Some things are to be done,
My wife must move for Cassio to her Mistress,
I'll set her on.
My self a while, to draw the Moor apart,
And bring him jump, when he may Cassio find,
Solliciting his wife: I, that's the way,
Dull not devise by coldness and delay.

Exeunt

Actus Tertius. Scena prima.

Enter Cassio, with Musicians.

Cas. Masters play here, I will content your pains,
Something that's brief, and bid goodmorrow General.

They play, and enter the Clown.

Clo. Why Masters, ha your Instruments been at Naples, that they speak i'th' nose thus?
Boy. How Sir, how?
Clo. Are these I pray, call'd wind Instruments?
Boy. I marry are they Sir.
Clo. O, thereby hangs a tail.
Boy. Whereby hangs a tail Sir?
Clo. Marry Sir, by many a wind Instrument that I know. But Masters, her's money for you, and the General so likes your musick, that he desires you for loves fake, to make no more noise with it.
Boy. Well Sir, we will not.
Clo. If you have any musick that may not be heard, to't again; but as they say, to hear musick, the General does not greatly care.
Boy. We ha none such Sir.
Clo. Then put your pipes in your bag, for I'll away; go vanish into air, away.
Cas. Dost thou hear my honest friend?
Clo. No, I hear not your honest friend, I hear you.
Cas. Prethee keep up thy quallets, there's a poor piece of gold for thee: If the Gentlewoman that attends the General's wife be stirring, tell her there's one Cassio, entreats her a little favour of speech— wilt thou do this?
Enter Jago.

Cas. Do good my friend: In happy time Jago.

Jag. You ha not been abed then.

Cas. Why no, the day had broke before we parted:
I ha made bold Jago to send in to your wife,—my suit to her,
Is, that she will to vertuous Desdemona Procure me some access.

Jag. I'll send her to you presently,
And I'll devise a mean to draw the Moor Out of the way, that your converse and business May be more free.

Cas. I humbly thank you for’t: I never knew A Florentine more kind and honest.

Enter Emillia.

Em. Goodmorrow good Lievt.enant, I am sorry For your displeasure, but all will soon be well,
The General and his wife are talking of it, And he speaks for you stoutly: the Moor replies, That he you hurt is of great fame in Cyprus, And great affinity, and that in wholesome wisdom, He might not but refuse: but he protests he loves you, And needs no other tutor but his likings, To take the safest occasion by the front, To bring you in again.

Cas. Yet I beseech you, If you think fit, or that it may be done, Give me advantage of some brief discourse With Desdemona alone.

Em. Pray you come in,
I will bestow you where you shall have time, To speak your bosom freely.

Cas. I am much bound to you.

Enter Othello, Jago, and other Gentlemen.

Otb. These letters give Jago to the Pilate, And by him do my duties to the State; That done, I will be walking to the works, Repair there to me.

Jag. Well my good Lord, I'le do’t,

Otb. This fortification Gentlemen, shall we see’t?

Gent. We wait upon your Lordship.

Exit.
Enter Desdemona, Caiusio and Emilia.

Def. Be thou assured good Caffio, I will do
All my abilities in thy behalf.

Em. Good Madam do, I know it grieves my Husband,
As if the case were his.
Def. O that's an honest fellow:—do not doubt Caffio,
But I will have my Lord and you again,
As friendly as you were.

Caf. Bounteous Madam,
What ever shall become of Michael Caffio,
He's never any thing but your true servant.
Def. O Sir, I thank you, you do love my Lord:
You have known him long, and be you well assured,
He shall in strange, stand no farther off,
Then in a politicke distance.

Caf. I but Lady,
That policy may either last so long,
Or feed upon such nice and waterish diet,
Or breed it self, so out of circumstance,
That I being absent, and my place supplied,
My General will forget my love and service.
Def. Do not doubt that, before Emilia here,
I give thee warrant of thy place: assure thee,
If I do vow a friendship, I'll perform it,
To the last Article: my Lord shall never rest,
I'll watch him tame, and talk him out of patience:
His bed shall seem a School, his board a thirst,
I'll intermingle every thing he does,
With Caffio's suit; therefore be merry Caffio,
For thy Soliciter shall rather die,
Then give thy cause away.

Enter Othello, Jago, and Gentlemen.

Em. Madam, here comes my Lord.
Caf. Madam I'll take my leave.
Def. Nay stay, and hear me speak.
Caf. Madam not now, I am very ill at ease,
Vnfit for mine own purpose.
Def. Well, do your discretion.

Exit Caffio.

Jag. Ha, I like not that.
Oth. What dost thou say?
Jag. Nothing my Lord, or if,—I know not what.
Oth. Was not that Caffio parted from my wife?
Jag. Caffio my Lord?—no sure, I cannot think it.
That he would steal away so guilty-like,
Seeing you coming.
_Oth._ I do believe 'twas he.
_Def._ How now my Lord,
I have been talking with a Suitor here,
A man that languishes in your displeasure.
_Oth._ Who 'tis you mean?
_Def._ Why your Lieutenant Caffio, good my Lord,
If I have any grace or power to move you,
His present reconciliation take:
For if he be not one that truly loves you,
That errs in ignorance, and not in cunning,
I have no judgment in an honest face,
I prithee call him back.
_Oth._ Went he hence now?
_Def._ Yes faith, so humbled,
That he has left part of his griefs with me,
To suffer with him; good Love call him back.
_Oth._ Not now sweet Desdemona, some other time.
_Def._ But shall't be shortly?
_Oth._ The sooner sweet for you.
_Def._ Shall't be to night at Supper?
_Oth._ No, not to night.
_Def._ To morrow dinner then?
_Oth._ I shall not dine at home,
I meet the Captains at the Citadell.
_Def._ Why then to morrow night, or Tuesday morn,
On Tuesday morn, or night, or Wednesday morn,
I prithee name the time, but let it not Exceed three dayes: faith he's penitent.
And yet his trespass in our common reason,
(Save that they say, the wars must make examples,
Out of her belt) is not almost a fault,
To incur a private check: when shall he come?
_Tell me_ Othello: I wonder in my soul
What you could ask me, that I should deny?
Or stand so mamm'ring on? What Michael Caffio?
That came a wooing with you, and so many a time
When I have spoke of you disparagingly,
Hath tane your part, to have so much to do
To bring him in? Trust me, I could do much,— _Oth._ Prithee no more, let him come when he will,
I will deny thee nothing.
_Def._ Why this is not a boon
'Tis as I should intreat you wear your gloves:
Or feed on nourishing dishes, or keep you warm.
Or sue to you, to do a peculiar profit
To your own person: nay, when I have a suit,
Wherein I mean to touch your love indeed,
It shall be full of poise and difficult weight,
And fearful to be granted.

Oth. I will deny thee nothing,
Whereon I do beseech thee grant me this,
To leave me but a little to my self.

Des. Shall I deny you? no, farewell my Lord.

Oth. Farewell my Desdemona, I'le come to thee straight.

Des. Emilia, come, be it as your fancies teach you,
What ere you be I am obedient.     Exeunt Des. and Em.

Oth. Excellent wretch, perdition catch my soul,
But I do love thee, and when I love thee not.

Chaos is come again.

Jag. My noble Lord.

Oth. What dost thou say Jag?

Jag. Did Michael Caffio when you wooed my Lady,
Know of your love?

Oth. He did from first to last:—Why dost thou ask?

Jag. but for a satisfaction of my thought,

No further harm.

Oth. Why of thy thought Jag?

Jag. I did not think he had been acquainted with her.

Oth. O yes, and went between us very oft.

Jag. Indeed?

Oth. Indeed? I indeed, desern't thou ought in that?

Is he not honest?

Jag. Honest my Lord?

Jag. My Lord, for  ought I know,

Oth. What dost thou think?

Jag. Think my Lord?

Oth. Think my Lord? why dost thou ecchome,

As if there were some monster in thy thought,

Too hidious to be thown: Thou dost mean something:
I heard thee say but now, thou lik'lt not that?
When Caffio left my wife: what didst not like?
And when I told thee, he was of my counfel,
In my whole curse of woing thou cri'dst indeed?
And didst contract, and purf' thy brow together,
As if thou then hadst shut up in thy brain,
Some horrible conceit: If thou dost love me,
Shew me thy thought.

Jag. My Lord you know I love you.

Oth. I think thou dost,

And for I know, thou art full of love and honesty,
And weighest thy words, before thou giv'lt 'em breath,
Therefore these stops of thine fret me the more.
the Moor of Venice.

For such things in a false disloyal Knave,
Are tricks of custome; but in a man that's just,
They are close dilations, working from the heart,
That passion cannot rule.

Jag. For Michael Cassio,
I dare be sworn, I think that he is honest.

Oth. I think so too

Jag. Men should be what they seem,
Or those that be not, would they might seem none.

Oth. Certain, men should be what they seem,

Jag. Why then I think Cassio's an honest man.

Oth. Nay, yet there's more in this,
I prethee speake to me, as to thy thinking.

As thou dost ruminate, and give thy worst of thoughts,
The worst of words.

Jag. Good my Lord pardon me;
Though I am bound to every act of duty,
I am not bound to that all slaves are free too,
Utter my thoughts: Why, say they are vile and false:
As where's that Pallace, whereinto foul things
Sometimes intrude not? Who has a breast so pure,
But some uncleanly apprehensions
Keep Leets and Law-dayes, and in Session sit
With meditations lawful?

Oth. Thou dost conspire against thy friend Jago;
If thou but thinkest him wrong'd, and makest his ear
A stranger to thy thoughts.

Jag. I do beseech you,
Though I perchance am vicious in my ghes,
(As I confes it is my natures plague,
To spy into abuses, and oft my jealousy
Shapes faults that are not:) that your wisdome yet,
From one that so imperfectly conceits,
Would take no notice, nor build your self a trouble.
Out of my scattering and unsure observance;
It were not for your quiet, nor your good,
Nor for my manhhood, honesty, or wisdome;
To let you know my thoughts.

Oth. What doft thou mean?

Jag. Good name in man and woman (dear my Lord)
Is the immediate Jewel of our Souls:
Who steals my purse, steals trash, 'tis something, nothing:
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands:
But he that filches from me my good name,
Robbs me of that which not inriches him,
And makes me poor indeed,

Oth. I'll know thy thoughts.
Jag. You cannot, if my heart were in your hand,
Nor shall not, whilst 'tis in my custody.
Oth. Ha?
Jag. O beware (my Lord) of jealousie;
It is a green ey'd monster, which doth mock
The meat it feeds on, That Cuckold lives in bliss,
Who certain of his fate, loves not his wronger:
But oh, what damned minutes tells he ere,
Who dotes, yet doubts, suspects, yet strongly loves.
Oth. O misery.
Jag. Poor and content is rich, and rich enough,
But riches finelefs, is as poor as winter,
To him that ever fears he shall be poor:
Good Heaven, the Souls of all my Tribe defend
From jealousie.
Oth. Why, why is this?
Thinkst thou I'd make a life of jealousie?
To follow still the changes of the Moon
With fresh suspicions? No, to be once in doubt,
Is once to be resolv'd: exchange me for a Goat,
When I shall turn the business of my Soul
To such exufllicate, and blown surmifes,
Matching thy inference: 'tis not to make me jealous,
To say my wife is fair, feeds well, loves company,
Is free of speech, sings, plays, and dances well;
Where virtue is, there are more virtuous:
Nor from mine own weak merits will I draw
The smallest fear, or doubt of her revolt,
For she had eyes, and chosen me: no Jago,
I'le fee before I doubt, when I doubt, prove;
And on the proof, there is no more but this,
Away at once with love and jealousie.
Jag. I am glad of it, for now I shall have reason
To shew the love and duty that I bear you,
With franker spirit: therefore as I am bound,
Receive it from me: I speak not yet of proof,
Look to your wife, observe her well with Cassio;
Wear your eye thus, not jealous, nor secure,
I would not have your free and noble nature,
Out of self-bounty be abus'd, look too't:
I know our Country disposition well,
In Venice they do let Heaven see the pranks,
They dare not shew their husbands: their best conscience
Is not to leave't undone, but keep't unknown.
Oth. Doft thou say so?
Jag. She did deceive her father marrying you:
And when she seem'd to shake and fear your looks,
She lov'd them most.
the Moore of Venice.

Oth. And so she did.

Jag. Why go too then,

She that so young, could give out such a seeming,
To seal her fathers eyes up, close as Oak,
He thought 'twas witchcraft; but I am much too blame;
I humbly do beseech you of your pardon,
For too much loving you.

Oth. I am bound to thee for ever.

Jag. I see this hath a little dash'd your spirits.

Oth. Not a jot, not a jot.

Jag. Trust me, I fear it has.

I hope you will consider what is spoke,
Comes from my love: but I do see you are mov'd,
I am to pray you, not to strain my speech
To groffer issues, nor to larger reach,
Then to suspicion.

Oth. I will not.

Jag. Should you do so my Lord.

My speech should fall into such vile success,
As my thoughts aim not at: Caffio's my worthy friend:
My Lord, I see you are mov'd.

Oth. No, not much mov'd,

I do not think but Desdemona's honest.

Jag. Long live the so, and long live you to think so.

Oth. And yet how nature erring from it self.

Jag. I, there's the point: as to be bold with you,

Not to affect many proposed matches,
Of her own clime, complexion, and degree,
Whereof we see in all things nature tends;
Fie we may smell in such a will most rank,
Foul disproportion, thoughts unnatural.
But pardon me: I do not in position,
Distinctly speak of her, tho I may fear
Her will recoyling to her better judgment,
May fall to match you with her country forms,
And happily repent.

Oth. Farewell, if more

Thou dost perceive, let me know more, set on Thy wife to observe: leave me. Jago.

Jag. My Lord I take my leave.

Oth. Why did I marry? This honest creature doubtless,

Sees, and knows more, much more than he unfolds.

Jag. My Lord, I would I might intreat your honour,

To scan this thing no farther, leave it to time,
And though 'tis fit that Caffio have his place,
(For sure he fills it up with great ability,)
Yet if you please to hold him off a while,
You shall by that, perceive him and his means;
Note if your Lady strain her entertainment,
With any strong or vehement importunity,
Much will be seen in that, in the mean time,
Let me be thought too busy in my fears,
(As worthy cause I have, to fear I am:)
And hold her free, I do beseech your honour.

Oth. Fear not my government.

Jas. I once more take my leave.

Oth. Fear not, but with that, your Lady drain her entertainment,
With any strong or vehement importunity,
Much will be seen in that, in the mean time,
Let me be thought too busy in my fears,
(As worthy cause I have, to fear I am:)
And hold her free, I do beseech your honour.

Enter Desdemona and Emillia

Def. How now my dear Othello?

Your dinner, and the generous Ilander
By you invited, do attend your presence.

Oth. I am to blame,

Def. Why is your speech so faint? are you not well?

Oth. I have a pain upon my forehead, hear.

Def. Why that with watching, 'twill away again;

Let me but bind it hard, within this hour
It will be well.

Oth. Your napkin is too little:
Let it alone, come I'll go in with you.

Def. I am very sorry that you are not well.

Em. I am glad I have found this napkin,

Exit Oth. and Def.

This
This was her first remembrance from the Moor,
My wayward husband, hath a hundred times
Wooed me to steal it, but he so loves the token,
For he conjur'd her she should ever keep it,
That she refers it ever more about her,
To kiss and talk too: I'll ha the work tane out,
And giv't Jago: what he'll do with it,
Heaven knows, not I. [Enter Jago.

I nothing, but to please his fantase.

Jag. How now, what do you here alone?

Em. Do not you chide, I have a thing for you.

Jag. A thing for me, it is a common thing—

Em. Ha?

Jag. To have a foolish wife.

Em. O, is that all? what will you give me now,

For that fame handkerchief?

Jag. What handkerchief?

Em. What handkerchief?

Why, that the Moor first gave to Desdemona,
That which so often you did bid me steal.

Jag. Ha'ft stole it from her?

Em. No faith, she let it drop by negligence,
And to the advantage, I being here took it up:
Look, here it is.

Jag. A good wench, give it me.

Em. What will you do with it,

That you have been so earnest to have me filch it?

Jag. Why, what's that to you?

Em. If't be not for some purpose of import,
Give me't again, poor Lady, she'll run mad
When she shall lack it.

Jag. Be not you acknowledg'd, I have use for it:—go leave me

I will in Cassio's lodging lose this napkin,
And let him find it: Trifes light as Air
Are to the jealous confirmations strong
As proofs of holy Writ, this may do something:
The Moor already changes with my poison,
Dangerous conceits are in their natures poisons,
Which at the first are scarce found to distast;
But with a little act upon the blood,
Burn like the mines of Sulphure: I did say so:
Look where he comes, not Poppy, nor Mandragora,
Nor all the drousiest drops of the world,
Shall ever medicine thee to that sweet sleep,
Which thou owedst yesterday.

Oth. Ha, ha, false to me, to me?

Jag. Why how now General? no more of that.

Oth.
Oth. Avant, be gone, thou hast set me on the rack,
I swear, 'tis better to be much abus'd,
Then but to know it a little.

Jag. How now my Lord?

Oth. What fence had I of her stolne hours of lust?
I law'n't not, thought it not, it harm'd not me,
I slept the next night well, was free and merry;
I found not Caffio's kisses on her lips;
He that is rob'd, not wanting what is stolne,
Let him not know it and he's not rob'd at all.

Jag. I am sorry to hear this.

Oth. I had been happy if the general Camp,
Pyrones and all, had ta'lted her sweet body,
So I had nothing known: O now for ever
Farewel the tranquil mind, farewell content;
Farewel the plumed Troop, and the big wars,
That makes ambition virtue: O farewell,
Farewel the neighing Steed, and the shrill Trumps,
The spirit-stirring Drum, the ear-piercing Fife,
The royal Banner, and all quality,
Pride, pomp, and circumstance of glorious war,
And O ye mortal Engines, whole wide throats,
The immortal Joves great clamors counterfeit;
Farewel, Othello's Occupation's gone.

Jag. Is't possible my Lord?

Oth. Villain, be sure thou prove my Love a whore,
Be sure of it, give me the ocular proof;
Or by the worth of my eternal Soul,
Thou hadst better have been born a dog,
Then answer my wak'd wrath.

Jag. Is't come to this?

Oth. Make me to see't, or at the least to prove it,
That the probation bear no hinge, nor loop,
To hang a doubt on: or woe upon thy life.

Jag. My noble Lord.

Oth. If thou dost flander her, and torture me,
Never pray more, abandon all remorse:
On horrors head, horrors accumulate:
Do deeds to make Heaven weep, all Earth amaz'd,
For nothing canst thou to damnation add greater than that:

Jag. O grace, O Heaven, defend me,
Are you a man have you a soul or sense?
God buy you, take my Office,—O wretched fool;
That livell to make thine honesty a vice:
O monифrous world take note, take note O world:
To be direct and honest is not safe,
I thank you for this profit, and from hence,
I'll love no friend, since love breeds such offence.

Oth. Nay stay, thou shouldst be honest.

Jag. I should be wise, for honesty's a fool,
And loses that it works for.

Oth. By the world,

I think my wife be honest, and think she is not,
I think that thou art just, and think thou art not;
I'll have some proof: her name that was as fresh
As Diana's visage, is now begrim'd, and black
As mine own face: if there be cords or knives,
Poyson, or fire, or suffocating streams,
I'll not endure it: would I were satisfied.

Jag. I see Sir, you are eaten up with passion,
I do repent me that I put it to you;
You would be satisfied.

Oth. Would, nay, I will.

Jag. And may, but how, how satisfied my Lord?
Would you the supervision grossly gape on,
Behold her topt?

Oth. Death and damnation—oh.

Jag. It were a tedious difficulty I think,
To bring 'em to that prospect, damn 'em then,
If ever mortal eyes did see them boulter
More than their own; what then, how then?
What shall I say? where's satisfaction?
It is impossible you should see this,
Were they as prime as Goats, as hot as Monkeys,
As salt as Wolves in pride, and fools as gross
As ignorance made drunk: but yet I say,
If imputation and strong circumstances,
Which lead directly to the dore of truth
Will give you satisfaction, you may ha't.

Oth. Give me a living reason, that she's disloyal.

Jag. I do not like the Office,
But sith I am enter'd into this cause so far,
Prickt to't by foolish honesty and love,
I will go on: I lay with Cassio lately,
And being troubled with a raging tooth, I could not sleep,
There are a kind of men so loose of soul,
That in their sleep will mutter their affairs,
One of this kind is Cassio:
In sleep I heard him say, Sweet Desdemona,
Let us be wary, let us hide our loves;
And then Sir would he gripe and wring my hand,
Cry out sweet creature, and then kiss me hard,
As if he pluckt up kisses by the roots,
That grew upon my lips, then layed his leg

G 2
Over my thigh, and sigh’d, and kissed, and then
Cryed, cursed fate, that gave thee to the Moor.

Oth. O monstrous, monstrous.
Jag. Nay, this was but his dream.

Oth. But this denoted a fore-gone conclusion.

'Tis a shrewd doubt, tho’ it be but a dream.

Jag. And this may help to thicken other proofs.

That do demonstrate thinly.

Oth. I’ll tear her all to pieces.

Jag. Nay, but be wise, yet we see nothing done,
She may be honest yet: tell me but this,
Have you not sometimes seen a handkerchief,
Spotted with strawberries in your wife’s hand?

Oth. I gave her such a one, ’twas my first gift.

Jag. I know not that, but such a handkerchief,
I am sure it was your wife’s, did I to day
See Cassio wipe his beard with.

Oth. If’t be that.

Jag. If it be that, or any, it was hers;
It speaks against her, with the other proofs.

Oth. O that the slave had forty thousand lives,
One is too poor, too weak for my revenge:
Now I do see ’tis true, look here Jago,
All my fond love, thus do I blow to Heaven,—’tis gone.

Arise black vengeance from thy hollow Cell,
Yield up O love thy crown, and hearted Throne,
To tyrannous hate, swell bosome with thy fraught,

For ’tis of Africks tongues.

Jag. Pray be content.

Oth. O blood, Jago, blood.

Jag. Patience I say, your mind perhaps may change.

Oth. Never Jago.

I like to the Pontick Sea,
Whose icy current and compulsive course,
Ne’er feels retiring ebbe, but keeps on,
To the Propontick and the Hellepsont:
Even so my bloody thoughts, with violent pace,
Shall ne’er look back, ne’er ebbe to humble love,
Till that a capable and wide revenge
Swallow them up. Now by yond marble Heaven,
In the due reverence of a sacred vow,
I here engage my words.

Jag. Do not rise yet:

Witness the ever-burning lights above,
You Elements that clip us round about;
Witness that here, Jago, doth give up
The execution of his wit, hand, heart.
the Moore of Venice.

To wrong’d Othello’s service: let him command,
And to obey, shall be in me remorse,
What bloody work so ever.

Oth. I greet thy love;
Not with vain thanks, but with acceptance bounteous,
And will upon the instant put thee to’t,
Within these three dayes, let me hear thee say
That Cassio’s not alive.

Jag. My friend is dead:
’Tis done as you request, but let her live.

Oth. Damn her leud minks: O damn her,
Come, go with me apart, I will withdraw,
To furnish me with some swift means of death,
For the fair devil: now art thou my Lieutenant.

Jag. I am your own for ever. [Exit.]

Enter Desdemona, Emillia, and the Clown.

Def. Do you know Sirra, where the Lieutenant Cassio lies?

Clo. I dare not say he lies any where,

Def. Why man?

Clo. He is a Souldier, and for one to say a Souldier lies, is slapping.

Def. Go too, where lodges he?

Clo. To tell you where he lodges, is to tell you where I lie.

Def. Can any thing be made of this?

Clo. I know not where he lodges, and for me to devise a lodging, and say he lies there, were to lye in mine own throat.

Def. Can you enquire him out, and be edified by report?

Clo. I will catechize the world for him, that is, make questions, and by them answer.

Def. Seek him, bid him come hither, tell him I have moved my Lord in his behalf, and hope all will be well.

Clo. To do this, is within the compass of mans wit, and therefore I’ll attempt the doing of it. [Exit.]

Def. Where should I lose that handkerchief Emillia?

Em. I know not Madam.

Def. Believe me, I had rather lose my purse

Full of Crusadoes: and but my noble Moor,
Is true of mind, and made of no such baseness,
As jealous creatures are, it were enough
To put him to ill thinking.

Em. Is he not jealous?

Def. Who he? I think the Sun where he was born,

Drew all such humors from him. [Enter Othello.]

Em. Look where he comes.

Def. I will not leave him now,

Till Cassio be call’d to him: how is it with you my Lord?

Oth. Well my good Lady: O hardnes to dissemble:
How do you Desdemona?

Des. Well, my good Lord.

Oth. Give me your hand, this hand is moist my Lady,

Des. It yet has felt no age, nor known no sorrow.

Oth. This argues fruitfulness and liberal heart,

Hot, hot, and moist, this hand of yours requires
A fequester from liberty: fasting and praying,
Much cattigation, exercize devout;
For here's a young aud sweating devil here,
That commonly rebels: 'tis a good hand,
A frank one.

Des. You may indeed say so.

For 'twas that hand that gave away my heart.

Oth. A liberal hand, the hearts of old gave hands,

But our new heraldry is hands, not hearts,

Des. I cannot speak of this; come now your promise.

Oth. What promise chuck?

Des. I have sent to bid Cassio come speak with you.

Oth. I have a faint and fullen rhume offends me,

Lend me thy handkerchief.

Des. Here my Lord.

Oth. That which I gave you.

Des. I have it not about me.

Oth. Not.

Des. No indeed my Lord.

Oth. That's a fault: that handkerchief

Did an Egyptian to my mother give,

She was a Charmer, and could almost read
The thoughts of people; she told her while she kept it,
'Twould make her amiable, and subdue my father

Entirely to her love: But if she lost it,

Or made a gift of it, my father's eye
Should hold her loathed, and his spirit should hunt

After new fancies: She dying gave it me,

And bid me, when my fate would have me wive,

To give it her; I did so, and take heed on't,

Make it a darling like your precious eye,

To lose, or giv't away, were such perdition,

As nothing else could match.

Des. Is't possible?

Oth. 'Tis true, there's magick in the web of it,

A Sybel that had numbered in the world,

The Sun to course two hundred compasses,

In her prophetick fury, sowed the work:

The worms were hallowed that did breed the silk,

And it was died in Mummy, which the skillful

Conserve of Maidens hearts.
Indeed, is't true?

Most veritable, therefore look to't well.

Then would to God that I had never seen it.

Ha, wherefore?

Why do you speak so startlingly and rash?

I't lost? I't gone? speak, is it out o' th' way?

Bless us.

Say you?

It is not lost, but what and if it were?

Ha.

I say it is not lost.

Fetch't, let me see it,

Why so I can Sir, but I will not now,

This is a trick, to put me from my suit,

I pray let Caffio be receiv'd again.

Fetch me that handkerchief, my mind misgives.

Come, come, you'll never meet a more sufficient man.

The handkerchief.

A man, that all his time

Founded his good fortunes on your love,

Shared dangers with you.

The handkerchief.

In sooth you are to blame.

Away.

Is not this man jealous?

I never saw this before:

Sure ther's some wonder in this handkerchief,

I am most unhappy in the loss of it.

Enter Jago and Caffio.

'Tis not a year or two shews us a man,

They are all but stomachs, and we all but food;

They eat us hungerly, and when they are full,

They belch us; look you, Caffio and my husband.

There is no other way, 'tis she must do it,

And lo the happiness, go, and importune her.

How now good Caffio, what's the news with you?

Madam, my former suit: I do beseech you,

That by your vertuous means, I may again,

Exit, and be a member of his love,

Whom I, with all the office of my heart,

Entirely honour, I would not be delayed:

If my offence be of such mortal kind,

That not my service past nor present sorrows,

Nor purpos'd merit in futurity,

Can ransom me into his love again
But to know so, must be my benefit,
So shall I cloath me in a forcd content,
And shut my self up in some other course,
To fortunes almes.

Def. Alas thrice gentle Cassio,
My advocation is not now in tune;
My Lord is not my Lord, nor should I know him,
Were he in favour, as in humor alter'd:
So help me, every spirit sanctified,
As I have spoken for you all my best,
And stood within the blank of his displeasure,
For my free speech you must a while be patient,
What I can do I will, and more I will
Then for my self I dare, let that suffice you.

Jdg. Is my Lord angry?

Em. He went hence but now,
And certainly in strange unquietness.

Jdg. Can he be angry? I have seen the Cannon,
When it hath blown his ranks into the air;
And like the devil from his very arm,
Puff his own brother, and can he be angry?
Something of moment then: I will go meet him,
There's matter in't indeed, if he be angry.

Def. I prethee do so: something sure of State,
Either from Venice, or some unhatcht practice,
Made demonstrable here in Cyprus to him,
Hath puddled his clear spirit, and in such cases,
Mens natures wrangle with inferiour things,
The great ones are the object,
'Tis even so; for let our finger ake,
And it endues our other healthful members,
Even to that sense of pain; nay, we must think,

Men are not gods,
Nor of them look for such observances
As fits the Bridal: beshrew me much Emillia,
I was (unhandsome warrier as I am)
Arraigning his unkindness with my soul;
But now I find, I had stubborn'd the witness,
And he's indited fallly.

Em. Pray heaven it be State matters as you think,
And no conception, nor no jealous toy
Concerning you.

Def. Alas the day, I never gave him cause.

Em. But jealous souls will not be answer'd so,
They are not ever jealous for the cause,
But jealous for they are jealous: 'tis a monster,
Begot upon it self, born on it self.
Def. Heaven keep that monster from Othello’s mind.

Em. Lady, Amen.

Def. I will go seek him, Cassio walk here about,
If I do find him fit, I’ll move your suit, Exeunt Desd.

And seek to affect it to my uttermost.

Cas. I humbly thank your Ladyship.

Bian. Save you friend Cassio.

Cas. What make you from home?

How is it with you my most fair Bianca?

Indeed sweet love I was coming to your house.

Bia. And I was going to your lodging Cassio;
What keep a week away? seven days and nights,
Eightscore eight hours, and lovers absent hours,
More tedious then the dial, eightscore times,
O weary reckoning!

Cas. Pardon me Bianca,
I have this while with leaden thoughts been press,
But I shall in a more continue time,
Strike off this score of absence: sweet Bianca,
Take me this work out,

Bia. Oh Cassio, whence came this?
This is some token from a newer friend
To the felt absence, now I feel a cause,
Is’t come to this? well, well.

Cas. Go to woman,
Throw your vile gospels in the devils teeth,
From whence you have them, you are jealous now,
That this is from some Mistrels, some remembrance,
No in good troth Bianca.

Bia. Why, whose is it?

Cas. I know not sweet, I found it in my chamber,
I like the work well, ere it be demanded,
As like enough, it will I’d have it coppied,
Take it and do’t and leave me for this time.

Bia. Leave you, wherefore?

Cas. I do attend here on the General,
And think it no addition, nor my wish,
To have him see me woman’d.

Bia. Why I pray you?

Cas. Not that I love you not.

Bia. But that you do not love me:
I pray you bring me on the way a little,
And say, if I shall see you soon at night.

Cas. ’Tis but a little way that I can bring you,
For I attend here, but I’ll see you soon.

Bia. ’Tis very good, I must be circumstanc’d. Exeunt.
Actus Quartus. Scoena prima.

Enter Jago and Othello.

Jag. Will you think so?
Oth. Think so Jago.

Jag. What, to kiss in private?
Oth. An unauthoriz'd kiss.
Jag. Or to be naked with her friend abed;
An hour, or more, not meaning any harm?
Oth. Naked abed Jago, and not mean harm?

It is hypocrisy against the devil:
They that mean virtuously, and yet do so,
The devil their vertue tempts, and they tempt heaven.
Jag. So they do nothing “tis a venial slip;
But if I give my wife a handkerchief.
Oth. What then?
Jag. Why then ’tis hers my Lord, and being hers,
She may, I think, bestow’t on any man.
Oth. She is protestress of her honour too:
May she give that?
Jag. Her honour is an essence that’s not seen,
They have it very oft, that have it not:
But for the handkerchief.
Oth. By heaven I would most gladly have forgot it;
Thou saidst (’tis comes o’re my memory,
As doth the Raven o’re the infected house,
Boding to all.) he had my handkerchief.
Jag. What of that?
Oth. That’s not so good now.
Jag. What if I said I had seen him do you wrong?
Or heard him say, (as knaves be such abroad,
Who having by their own importunate suite,
Or voluntary dotage of some Mistris,
Conjured, or supplied them, cannot chuse,
But they must blab.)
Oth. Hath he said any thing?
Jag. He hath my Lord, but be you well assur’d,
No more then he’ll unswear.
Oth. What hath he said?
Jag. Why that he did—I know not what he did
Oth. What?
Jag. Lye.
the Moor of Venice.

Oth. With?
Jag. With her, on her, what you will.
Oth. Lie with her, lie on her? We say lie on her; when they be by her; lye with her, that's fullsome, handkerchiefs, confession, handkerchiefs; to confess, and be hang'd for his labour, first to be hang'd, and then to confess; I tremble at it: Nature would not invert her self in such shadowing passion, without some instruction: It is not words that shakes me thus, (pith) noses, ears, lips: Is't possible? confess? handkerchief? O devil. Falls in a trance.

Jag. Work on my medicine, work: thus credulous fools are caught, and many worthy and chant Dames, even thus (all guiltless) meet reproach: What ho my Lord, my Lord I say, Othello,—how now Cassio?

Enter Cassio.

Cass. What's the matter?
Jag. My Lord is fallen into an Epilepsy,
This is his second fit, he had one yesterday.
Cass. Rub him about the temples.
Jag. No, forbear.
The Lethargy must have his quiet course,
If not, he foams at mouth, and by and by
Breaks out to savage madness: look, he flirs:
Do you withdraw your self a little while,
He will recover straight; when he is gone,
I would on great occasion speak with you.
How is it General, have you not hurt your head?
Oth. Dost thou mock me?
Jag. I mock you, no by heaven,
Would you would bear your fortunes like a man.
Oth. A horned man's a monster, and a beast.
Jag. There's many a beast then in a populous City,
And many a civil monster.
Oth. Did he confess?
Jag. Good Sir be a man,
Think every bearded fellow, that's but yoak'd,
May draw with you, there's millions now alive,
That nightly lye in those improper beds,
Which they dare swear peculiar: your case is better:
O 'tis the spite of hell, the fiends arch mock,
To lip a wanton in a secure Couch,
And to suppose her cheat: No, let me know,
And knowing what I am, I know what he shall be.
Oth. O thou art wife, 'tis certain.
Jag. Stand you a while apart,
Confin'e your self but in a patient lift:
Whilst you were here o'rewhelmed with your grief,
(A passion most unfitting such a man.)
Cassio cam hither, I shifted him away,
And layed good fserve upon your extaʃy;
Bad him anon retire, and here speak with me;
The which he promis’d: But incave your self,
And mark the jeers, the gibes, and notable scorns,
That dwell in every region of his face;
For I will make him tell the tale anew,
Where, how, how oft, how long ago, and when,
He has, and is again to cope your wife:
I say, but mark his gesture, marry patience,
Or I shall say, you are all in all, in spleen,
And nothing of a man.

Oth. Doft thou hear Jago,
I will be found most cunning in my patience;
But dost thou hear, most bloody.

Jag. That’s not amiss:
But yet keep time in all: will you withdraw?
Now will I question Cassio of Bianca;
A housewife, that by selling her desires,
Buys her self bread and cloaths; it is a creature,
That dotes on Cassio; as’tis the strumpets plague
To beguile many, and be beguiled by one: Enter Cassio.

He, when he hears of her, cannot refrain
From the excess of laughter: here he comes:
As he shall smile Othello shall go mad,
And his unbookish jealousy must confîer,
Poor Cassio’s smiles, gesitures, and light behaviour,
Quite in the wrong: How do you now Lievetenant?

Cass. The worser that you give me the addition,
Whole want even kills me.

Jag. Ply Desdemona well, and you are sure on’t.

Now, if this suit lay in Bianca’s power,
How quickly should you speed.

Cass. Alas poor cative.

Oth. Look how he laughs already.

Jag. I never knew a woman love man so.

Cass. Alas poor rogue, I think indeed she loves me.

Oth. Now he denies it faintly, and laughs it out.

Jag. Do you hear Cassio?

Oth. Now he importunes him to tell it on.

Go to, well said.

Jag. She gives it out that you shall marry her,
Do you intend it?

Cass. Ha, ha, ha.

Oth. Do you triumph Roman, do you triumph?

Cass. I marry her? what? a Customer?

I prethee bear some charity to my wit,
Do not think it so unwholsome: ha, ha, ha.

Oth. So, so, so, they laugh that wins.

Jag. Why, the cry goes, that you shall marry her.

Cas. Prethee say true.

Jag. I am a very villain else.

Oth. Ha, you scard me? well.

Cas. This is the monkies own giving out; she is perfwaded I will marry her, out of her own love and flattery, not out of my promise.

Oth. Jago beckons me, now he begins the story.

Cas. She was here even now, she haunts me in every place, I was tother day talking on the sea bank with certain Venetians, and thither comes this buble, falls me thus about my neck.

Oth. Crying, O dear Caflio, as it were: his gesture imports it.

Cas. So hangs and jolls, and weeps upon me; so hales, and pulls me, ha, ha, ha.

Oth. Now he tells how the plucked him to my Chamber;

I see that nose of yours, but not that dog I shall throw't to.

Cas. Well, I must leave her company:

Enter Bianca.

Before me, look where she comes,

Tis such another Fitchew; marry a perfum'd one: What do you mean by this haunting of me?

Bian. Let the devil and his dam haunt you: what did you mean by that same handkerchief you gave me even now? I was a fine fool to take it; I must take out the work, a likely piece of work, that you should find it in your chamber, and not know who left it there: this is some minxes token, and I must take out the work: there, give it the hobby-horse; wherefoever you had it, I'll take out no work on't.

Cas. How now my sweet Bianca, how now, how now?

Oth. By heaven that should be my handkerchief.

Bia. An you'll come to supper to night, you may, an you will not, come when you are next prepar'd for.

Exit.

Jag. After her, after her.

Cas. I must, she'll rail i'the street else.

Jag. You sup there.

Cas. Yes, I intend so.

Jag. Well. I may chance to see you, for I would very fain speak with you.

Cas. Prethee come, will you?

Jag. Go to, say no more.

Oth. How shall I murder him Jago?

Jag. Did you perceive, how he laughed at his vice?

Oth. O Jago.

Jag. And did you see the handkerchief?

Oth. Was that mine?

I would have him nine years a killing; a fine woman, a fair woman, a sweet woman.

Jag. Nay, you must forget that

Oth. And let her rot and perish, and be damn'd to night; for she shall not live live: no, my heart is turn'd to a stone; I strike it, and it hurts my hand: O the world has not a sweeter creature, she might lie by an Emperors side, and command him tasks.

Jag. Nay, that's not your way.

Oth. Hang her, I do not say what she is: So delicate with her needle, an admirable Musitian; O she will sing the savageness out of a Bear; of so high and plentious wit and invention.

Jag. She's the worse for all this.

Oth. A thousand thousand times: and then of so gentle a condition.

Jag. I, too gentle.

Oth. Nay that's certain, but yet the pity of it Jago, oh the pity.

Jag. If you be so fond over her iniquity, give her patent to offend, for if it touches not you, it comes near no body.

Oth. I will chop her in pieces,—cuckold me!

Jag. O, 'tis foul in her.

Oth. With mine Officer.

Jag. That's fouler.

Oth. Get me some poison Jago, this night Ile not expostulate with her, left her body and beauty unprovide my mind again, this night Jago.

Jag. Do it not with poysen, strangle her in her bed, even the bed she hath contaminated.

Oth. Good, good, the justice of it pleases, very good.

Jag. And for Caffio, let me be his undertaker: you shall hear more by midnight.

A Trumpet.

Enter Lodovico, Desdemona, and Attendants.

Oth. Excellent good:

What Trumpet is that fame?

Jag. Something from Venice sure; 'tis Lodovico

Come from the Duke, and see, your wife is with him.

Lod. Save you worthy General.

Oth. With all my heart Sir.

Lod. The Duke and Senators of Venice greet you.

Oth. I kiss the instrument of their pleasures.

Des. And what's the news good cousin Lodovico?

Jag. I am very glad to see you Seignior:—

Welcome to Cyprus.

Lod. I thank you, how does Lieutenant Caffio?

Jag. Lives Sir.

Des. Cousen, there's fallen between him and my Lord,

An unkind breach, but you shall make all well.

Oth. Are you sure of that?

Des. My Lord.

Oth. This fail you not to do, as you will.—

Lod. He did not call, he's busie in the paper:

Is there Division 'twixt my Lord and Caffio?
the Moor of Venice.

Des. A most unhappy one, I would do much to atone them, for the love I bear to Cassio.
Oth. Fire and Brimstone.
Des. My Lord.
Oth. Are you wife?
Des. What, is he angry?
Lod. May be the letter mov'd him;
For as I think they do command him home,
Deputing Cassio in his government.
Des. Trust me, I am glad on't.
Oth. Indeed.
Des. My Lord.
Oth. I am glad to see you mad.
Des. How sweet Othello?
Oth. Devil.
Des. I have not deserv'd this.
Lod. My Lord, this would not be believ'd in Venice.
Tho I should swear I saw't: 'tis very much,
Make her amends, she weeps.
Oth. O Devil, Devil,
If that the earth could teem with womens tears,
Each drop she falls would prove a Crocadile:
Out of my sight.
Des. I will not stay to offend you.
Lod. Truly an obedient Lady:
I do beseech your Lordship, call her back.
Oth. Mistress.
Des. My Lord.
Oth. What would you with her Sir?
Lod. Who I my Lord?
Oth. I, you did wish that I would make her turn:
Sir she can turn, and turn, and yet go on,
And turn again, and she can weepSir, weep;
And shee's obedient, as you say obedient,
Very obedient, proceed you in your tears,
Concerning this Sir: O well painted passion:
I am commanded home:—get you away,
I'll send for you anon:—Sir, I obey the Mandat;
And will returne to Venice:—hence avant,
Cassio shall have my place; and Sir to night
I do intreat that we may sup together.
You are welcome Sir to Cyprus,—goats and monkies.
Lod. Is this the noble Moor, whom our full Senate
Call all in all sufficient? This the noble nature,
Whom passion could not shake? Whose solid vertue,
The shot of accident, nor dart of chance
Could neither graze nor pierce?
Jag. He is much changed.

Lod. Are his wits safe? is he not light of brain?

Jag. He's that he is, I may not breath my censure,

What he might be, if what he might be, he is not,

I would to heaven he were.

Lod. What, strike his Wife!

Jag. Faith that was not so well; yet would I knew

That stroak would prove the worst.

Lod. Is it his use?

Or did the letters work upon his blood,

And new create this fault?

Jag. Alas, alas:

It is not honesty in me to speak

What I have seen and known; you shall observe

And his own courses will denote him so,

That I may have my speech: do but go after him;

And mark how he continues.

Lod. I am sorry that I am deceiv'd in him

Exeunt.

Enter Othello and Emillia.

Oth. You have seen nothing then.

Em. Nor ever heard, nor ever did suspect.

Oth. Yes, and you have seen Cassio and she together.

Em. But then I saw no harm, and then I heard

Each syllable that breath made up between 'em.

Oth. What, did they never whisper?

Em. Never, my Lord.

Oth. Nor send you out o'the way?

Em. Never.

Oth. To fetch her Fan, her Mask, her Gloves, nor nothing.

Em. Never, my Lord.

Oth. That's strange.

Em. I durst my Lord, to wager she is honest,

Lay down my soul at stake: if you think other,

Remove your thought, it doth abuse your bosome,

If any wretch ha put this in your head,

Let heaven require it with the Serpents curse,

For if she be not honest, chaste, and true,

There's no man happy, the purest of their wives,

Is soul as slander.

Exit Emillia.

Oth. Bid her come hither, go,

She says enough, yet she's a simple Bawd,

That cannot say as much: this is a subtle Whore,

A closet, lock and key, of villainous secrets,

And yet she'll kneel and pray, I ha seen her do't.

Enter
Enter Desdemona and Emilia.

Des. My Lord, what is your will?
Oth. Pray chuck come hither.
Des. What is your pleasure?
Oth. Let me see your eyes—look in my face.
Des. What horrible fancy's this?
Oth. Some of your function Mistresses,
Leave procreants alone, and shut the door,
Coff, or cry hem, if any body come,
Your Mistresses, your Mistresses; nay dispatch.
Des. Upon my knees, What does your speech import?
I understand a fury in your words,
But not the words.
Oth. Why, what art thou?
Des. Your wife my Lord, your true and loyal wife.
Oth. Come, swear it, dam thy self;
Left being like one of heaven, the devils themselves
Should fear to seize thee, therefore be double damn'd;
Swear thou art honest.
Des. Heaven doth truly know it.
Oth. Heaven truly knows, that thou art fælce as hell.
Des. To whom, my Lord, with whom? how am I fælce?
Oth. O Desdemona, away, away, away.
Des. Alas the heavy day, why do you weep?
Am I the occasion of those tears my Lord?
If haply you my father do suspect,
An instrument of this your calling back,
Lay not your blame on me; if you have lost him,
Why I have lost him too.
Oth. Had it pleas'd heaven
To try me with affliction, had he rain'd
All kinds of sores, and shames on my bare head,
Steep'd me in poverty to the very lips,
Given to captivity, me and my hopes,
I should have found in some part of my soul
A drop of patience; but alas to make me
A fixed figure, for the time of scorn,
To point his flow unmoving finger at—oh, oh,
Yet could I bear that too, well, very well.
But there, where I have garner'd up my heart,
Where either I must live, or bear no life,
The fountain from which my currant runs,
Or else drives up, to be discarded thence,
Or keep it as a Cestern, from foul Toads
To knot and gender in: turn thy complexion there,
Patience thy young and rose-lip'd Cherubin,
I here look grim as hell.

Des. I hope my noble Lord esteems me honest.
Oth. O I, as summers flies are in the stambles,
That quicken even with blowing:
O thou black weed, why art so lovely fair?
Thou smell'st so sweet, that the fence akes at thee,
Would thou hadst not been born.

Des. Alas, what ignorant sin have I committed?
Oth. Was this fair paper, this most goodly book,
Made to write whore upon?—What committed?
Committed: Oh thou publick Commoner;
I should make very forges of my cheeks,
That would to cinders burn up modesty,
Did I but speak thy deeds: what committed?
Heaven stops the nose at it, and the Moon winks;
The bawdy wind that kills all it meets,
Is hushed within the hallow Mine of earth,
And will not hear:—what committed,—impudent strumpet;

Des. By heaven you do me wrong.
Oth. Are not you a strumpet?
Des. No, as I am a Christian:
If to preserve this vessel for my Lord,
From any other foul unlawful touch,
Be not to be a strumpet, I am none.

Oth. What, not a whore?
Des. No, as I shall be saved.
Oth. Is't possible?
Des. O heaven forgive us.
Oth. I cry you mercy then,

It took you for that cunning whore of Venice—
That married with Othello: You misfires,
That have the office opposite to St. Peter,
And keeps the gates in hell; you, you, I you;
We ha done our course; there's money for your pains,
I pray you turn the key, and keep our counsel.

Em. Alas, what does this Gentleman conceive:

How do you Madam? how do you my good Lady:

Des. Faith half a sleep.
Em. Good Madam, what's the matter with my Lord?
Des. With who?
Em. Why, with my Lord Madam.
Des. Who is thy Lord?
Em. He that is yours, sweet Lady.

Des. I have none, do not talk to me Emilia.
I cannot weep, nor answer have I none,
But what should go by water: prithee to night.
Lay on my bed my wedding sheets, remember,
And call thy husband hither.

_Em._ Here is a change indeed.

_Def._ 'Tis meet I should be used so, very meet,

How have I been behav'd, that he might stick
The small?st opinion on my leaft misufe.

_Jag._ What is your pleasure Madam?

How is't with you?

_Def._ I cannot tell, those that do teach young babes,
Do it with gentle means, and easie taskes;
He might ha chid me so, for in good faith,
I am a child to chiding.

_Jag._ What is the matter Lady?

_Em._ Alas Jago, my Lord hath so bewhor'd her,

Thrown such despite, and heavy tears upon her
As true hearts cannot bear.

_Def._ Am I that name Jago?

_Jag._ What name fair Lady?

_Def._ Such as she fays my Lord did fay I was.

_Em._ He call'd her whore; a beggar in his drink

Could not have laid such tears upon his Callet.

_Jag._ Why did he fo?

_Def._ I do not know, I am sure I am none such.

_Jag._ Do not weep, do not weep: alas the day.

_Em._ Has she forlook'd fo many noble matches,

Her Father, and her Country, and her Friends,
To be call'd whore? would it not make one weep?

_Def._ It is my wretched fortune.

_Jag._ Behrow him for it: how comes this trick upon him?

_Def._ Nay, heaven doth know.

_Em._ I will be hang'd, if fome eternal villain,

Some bufie and insinuating rogue,
Some cogging, coufening slave, to get fome office,

Have not devis'd this flander I'll be hang'd else.

_Jag._ Fie there is no fuch man, it is impossible.

_Def._ If any fuch there are heaven pardon him.

_Em._ A halter pardon him, and hell gnaw his bones:

Why should he call her whore? who keeps her company?

What place, what time, what form, what likelihood?

The Moor's abus'd by fome moft villainous knave,

Some base notorious knave, fome fcurvy fellow;
O heaven, that fuch companions thouf'd unfold,

And put in every honest hand a whip,

To lath the rafcl naked through the world.

Even from the eaf't to' th west.

_Jag._ Speak within doors.

_Em._ O tie upon him; fome fuch Squire he was,
That turn'd your wit, the feamy side without,
And made you to suspect me with the Moor.

Jago. You are a fool, go to.

Des. O good Jago,

What shall I do to win my Lord again?
Good friend go to him, for by this light of heaven,
I know not how I lost him.

Here I kneel:
If ere my will did trespass gainst his love,
Either in discourse, or thought, or actual deed,
Or that mine eyes, mine ears, or any sense,
Delighted them in any other form;
Or that I do not yet, and ever did,
And ever will (though he do shake me off
To beggarly divortment,) love him dearly:
Comfort forswear me; undignify may do much,
And his unkindness may defeat my life,
But never taint my love, I cannot say where,
It doth abhor me, now I speak the word,
To do the act, that might th'addition earn,
Not the worlds mass of vanity could make me.

Jago. I pray you be content, 'tis but his humour,
The business of the State does him offence,
And he doth chide with you.

Des. If 'twere no other.

Jago. 'Tis but so, I warrant you:
Hark how these Instruments summon you to supper.
The meat, great Messengers of Venice say;
Go in, and weep not, all things shall be well.

Enter woman.

How now Roderigo?

Roderigo. I do not find that thou deal'st justly with me.

Jago. What in the contrary?

Roderigo. Every day thou dostfl me with some device Jago; and rather as it seems to me now, keep'st from me all conveyency, then supplest me with the least advantage of hope: I will indeed no longer endure it, nor am I yet persuaded to put up in peace, what already I have foolishly suffered.

Jago. Will you hear me Roderigo?

Roderigo. Sir I have heard too much,
For your words and performance,
Are no kin together.

Jago. You charge me most unjustly.

Roderigo. With nought but truth: I have wasted my self out of means; the jewels you have had from me, to deliver to Desdemona, would half have corrupted a Votariff: you have told me she has receiv'd em, and return'd me expectation, and comforts of sudden respect and acquaintance, but I find none.

Jago. Well, go to, very well.
Rod. Very well, go to, I cannot go to (man,) nor 'tis not very well; I say 'tis very empty, and begin to find my self fopt in it.

Jag. Very well.

Rod. I say it is not very well: I will make my self known to Desdemona; if she will return me my Jewels, I will give over my suit, and repent my unlawful solicitation, if not, assure your self, I'll seek satisfaction of you.

Jag. You have said now.

Rod. I, and said nothing, but what I protest entendment of doing.

Jag. Why now I see there's mettle in thee, and even from this instant, do build on thee a better opinion then ever before; give me thy hand Roderigo: Thou haft taken against me a most just conception, but yet I protest, I have dealt most directly in thy affair.

Rod. It hath not appeared.

Jag. I grant indeed it hath not appear'd and your suspicion is not without wit and judgment: But Roderigo, if thou haft that within thee indeed, which I have greater reason to believe now, then ever, I mean, purpose, courage, and valour: this night shew it; if thou the next night following enjoyest-not Desdemona, take me from this world with treachery, and devise engines for my life.

Rod. Well, is it within reason and compas?

Jag. Sir, there is special commissiion come from Venice,

To depute Cassio in Othello's Place.

Rod. Is that true? why then Othello and Desdemona

Return again to Venice.

Jag. O no, he goes into Mauritania, and takes away with him

The fair Desdemona, unless his abode be linger'd

Here by some accident, wherein none can be so determinate,

As the removing of Cassio.

Rod. How do you mean removing of him?

Jag. Why, by making him incapable of Othello's place,

Knocking out his brains.

Rod. And that you would have me to do.

Jag. I, and if you dare do your self a profit and right; he sips to night with a harlotry, and thither will I go to him; — he knows not yet of his honourable fortune: if you will watch his going thence, which I will fashion to fall out between twelve and one, you may take him at your pleasure: I will be neer to secon your attempt, and he shall fall between us: come, stand not amaz'd at it, but go along with me, I will shew you such a necessity in his death, that you shall think your self bound to put it on him. It is now high supper time, and the night grows to waft: about it.

Rod. I will hear further reason for this.

Jag. And you shall be satisfied.

Exeunt.

Enter Othello, Desdemona, Lodovico, Emillia, and Attendents.

Lod. I do beseech you Sir, trouble your self no further.

Oth. O pardon me, it shall do me good to walk.

Lod.
Madam, good night, I humbly thank your Ladyship.

Your Honour is most welcome.

Will you walk Sir:—O Desdemona.

My Lord.

Get you to bed o’the instant, I will be return’d, forthwith dispatch your Attendant there,—look it be done.

I will my Lord.

How does it now? he looks gentler then he did.

He says he will return incontinent:

He hath commanded me to go to bed,
And bad me to dismiss you.

Dismiss me?

It was his bidding, therefore good Emilia,
Give me my nightly wearing, and adieu,
We must not now displeafe him.

Would you had never seen him.

So would not I, my love doth fo approve him,
That even his stubbornness, his checks and frowns,
(Prethee unpin me) have grace and favour in them.

I have laid those sheets you bad me on the bed.

All’s one, good father; how foolish are our minds;
If I do die before thee, prethee throwd me
In one of those fame sheets.

Come, come, you talk.

My mother had a Maid call’d Barbary,
She was in love, and he he lov’d prov’d mad,
And did forfake her; she had a song of willow,
An old thing ’twas, but it expreft her fortune,
And she died singing it; that song to night
Will not go from my mind:
I have much to do;
But to go hang my head all at one side, and sing it like poor Barbary prethee dispatch.

Shall I go fetch your night-gown?

No, unpin me here.

This Lodovico is a proper man.

A very handsome man.

He speaks well.

I know a Lady in Venice, would have walk’d barefooted to Palestine for a touch of his neither lip.

Desdemona sings.

The poor soul sat sighing by a sicamour tree,
Sing all a green willow,
Her hand on her bosome, her head on her knee,
Sing willow, willow, willow;
The fresh streams ran by her, and murmurd her moans,
Sing willow, willow, willow,
Her salt tears fell from her, which sevind the stones,
Sing willow, &c. (Lay by these.) willow, willow.

(Prethee hie thee, he'1 come anon.)
Sing all a green willow must be my garland.

Let nobody blame him, his scorn I approve:
(Nay, that's not next: hark, who's that knocks?)
Em. 'Tis the wind.
Def. I call'd my Love false, but what said he then?
Sing willow, willow, willow.
If I court my women, you'll couch with no men.

So, get thee gone, good night, mine eyes do itch,

Does that board weeping?
Em. 'Tis neither here nor there.
Def. I have heard it said so: O these men, these men.
Doft thou in conscience think (tell me Emilia,) That there be women do abuse their husbands
In such gross kinds?
Em. There be some such no question.
Def. Wouldst thou do such a thing, for all the world?
Em. Why, would not you?
Def. No, by this heavenly light,
Em. Nor I neither, by this heavenly light,
I might as well do it in the dark.
Def. Wouldst thou do such a deed, for all the world?
Em. The world is a huge thing, it is a great price
For a small vice.
Def. In troth I think thou wouldst not.
Em. In troth I think I should, and undo't when I had done it, marry I would not do such a thing for a joynt-ring, or for meaures of Lawn, nor for Gowns, Petticots, or Caps, nor any petty exibition: but for the whole world: why who would not make her husband a Cuckold to make him a Monarch? I should venter purgatory for it.
Def. Beshrew me, if I would do such wrong
For the whole world.
Em. Why, the wrong is but a wrong i'th world; and having the world for your labour, 'tis a wrong in your own world, and you might quickly make it right.
Def. I do not think there is any such woman.
Em. Yes, a dozen, and as many to the vantage, as would store the world they played for.
But I do think it is their husbands faults,
If wives do fall: (say that they slack their duties,
And pour our treasures into foreign laps.)
O T H E L L O.

Or else break out in peevish jealousies,
Throwing restraint upon us; or say they strike us,
Or scant our former having in dispight,
Why we have galls, and though we have some grace,
Yet have we some revenge: Let husbands know
Their wives have fence like them; they see, and smell,
And have their pallats both for sweet and sower,
As husbands have: what is it that they do,
When they change us for others? is it sport?
I think it is; and doth affection breed it?
I think it doth; is't frailty that thus errs?
It is so too; and have not we affections?
Desires for sport? and frailty as men have?
Then let em ufe us well, else let em know,
The ills we do, their ills instruct us so.
Def: Good night, good night, heaven me such ufees fend,
Not to pick bad from bad, but by bad mend.  Exeunt.

Actus Quintus. Scœna prima.

Enter Jago and Roderigo.

Jag. Here stand behind this bulk, strait will he come,
Weare thy good Rapier bare, and put it home,
Quick, quick, fear nothing, I'le be at thy elbow;
It makes us, or it marrs us, think of that,
And fix more firm thy resolution.
Rod. Be near at hand, I may miscarry in't.
Jag. Here at thy hand, be bold and take thy stand.
Rod. I have no great devotion to the deed;
And yet he has given me satisfying reasons;
'Tis but a man gon: forth my word, he dies.
Jag. I have rub'd this young Quat almost to the fenfe,
And he grows angry, now, whether he kill Caffio,
Or Caffio him, or each do kill the other,
Every way makes my game; live Roderigo,
He calls me to a restitution large,
For Gold and Jewels that I bob'd from him,
As gifts to Desdemona:
It must not be, if Caffio do remain,
He has a dayly beauty in his life,
That makes me ugly: and besides, the Moor
May unfold me to him; there stand I in much peril:
No, he must die, be’t so, I hear him coming.

Enter Cassio.

Rod. I know his gate, ’tis he; villain thou diest.
Cass. That thrust had been my enemy indeed,
But that my coat is better than thou know’st;
I will make proof of thine.
Rod. O, I am slain.
Cass. I am maim’d for ever, light ho, murder.

Enter Othello.

Oth. The voice of Cassio, Jago keeps his word.
Rod. O villain that I am.
Oth. Hark, ’tis even so.
Cass. O help ho, light, a Surgeon.
Oth. ’Tis he, O brave Jago, honest and just,
That hast such noble sense of thy friends wrong,
Thou teachest me;—minion, your Dear lies dead,
And your unblest fate hies; trumpet I come;
Forth of my heart, those charms thine eyes are blotted,
Thy bed lust stain’d, shall with lust’s blood be spotted. Exit.

Enter Lodovico and Gratiano.

Grat. ’Tis some mischance, the cry is very direful.
Rod. O wretched villain.
Lod. Two or three grones, it is a heavy night;
These may be counterfeits, let’s think’t unsafe
To come into the cry without more help.
Rod. No body come, then shall I bleed to death.

Enter Jago with a light.

Lod. Hark.
Grat. Here’s one comes in his shirt, with lights and weapons.
Jago. Who’s there? whose noise is this that cries out murder?
Lod. I do not know.
Jago. Did not you hear a cry?
Cass. Here, here, for heavens sake help me.
Jago. What’s the matter?
Grat. This is Othello’s Antient as I take it.
Lod. The same indeed, a very valiant fellow.
Jago. What are you here that cry so grievously?
Caf. Jago, O I am spoild, undone by villains,
Give me some help.
Jag. O me, Lieutenant, what villains have done this?
Caf. I think the one of them is hereabout,
And cannot make away.
Jag. O treacherous villains:
What are you there? come in and give some help.
Rod. O help me here.
Caf. That's one of them.
Jag. O murderous slave, O villain.
Rod. O damn'd Jago, O inhuman dog, — o, o, o.
Jag. Kill men i' th' dark? where be those bloody thieves?
How silent is this Town? Ho, murder, murder:
What may you be? are you of good or evil?
Lod. As you shall prove us, praise us.
Jag. Seignior Lodovico.
Lod. He Sir.
Jag. I cry you mercy: here's Cassio hurt by villains.
Gra. Cassio.
Jag. How is it brother?
Caf. My leg is cut in two.
Jag. Marry heaven forbid?
Light Gentlemen, I'le bind it with my shirt.

Enter Bianca...

Bia. What is the matter ho, who is't that cried?
Jag. Who is't that cried?
Bia. O my dear Cassio, O my sweet Cassio, Cassio, Cassio.
Jag. O notable trumpet: Cassio, may you suspect
Who they should be that thus have mangled you?
Caf. No.
Gra. I am sorry to find you thus, I have bin to seek you.
Jag. Lend me a garter, so;—ho for a chair to bear him safely hence.
Bia. Alas he faints; O Cassio, Cassio, Cassio.
Jag. Gentlemen all, I do suspect this Traitor.
To bear a part in this injury: patience awhile good Cassio.
Come, come, lend me a light:
Know we this face, or no?
Alas my friend, and my dear country-man:
Rodrigo? no, yes sure; yes, 'tis Rodrigo.
Gra. What, of Venice?
Jag. Even he Sir, did you know him?
Gra. Know him? I.
Jag. Signior Gratiano, I cry you gentle pardon:
These bloody accidents must excuse my manners:
That so neglected you.
Gra. I am glad to see you.
Gra. Roderigo?
Jag. He, 'tis he: O that's well said, a chair;
Some good man bare him carefully from hence,
I'll fetch the Generals Surgeon: for you Miftress,
Save you your labour, he that lies slain here, (Cassio),
Was my dear friend; what malice was betwixt you?
Cassio None in the world, nor do I know the man.
Stay you good Gentlewoman, look you pale Midress?
Do you perceive the gestures of her eye?
Nay, an you flir, we shall have more anon:
Behold her well I pray you, look upon her,
Do you see Gentlemen? nay guiltiness
Will speak, though tongues were out of use. Enter Emi.
Em. 'Las what's the matter? what's the matter husband?
By Roderigo, and fellows that are scap't,
He's almost slain, and Roderigo dead.
Em. Alas good Gentleman, alas good Cassio.
Jag. This is the fruit of whoring; prithee Emilia.
Go know of Cassio where he slept to night,
What, do you shake at that?
Bia. He slept at my house, but I therefore shake not.
Jag. O did he so, I charge you go with me.
Em. Fie upon thee strumpet.
Bia. I am no strumpet, but of life as honest,
As you, that abuse me,
Em. As I; now fie upon thee.
Jag. Kind Gentlemen, let's go see poor Cassio dreft;
'Come Miftrefs, you must tell's another tale.
Emilia, run you to the Cittadel,
And tell my Lord and Lady what has hapt:
Will you go on? I pray this is the night,
That either makes me, or fordoes me quite.
Exeunt.

Enter Othello with a light, and Desdemona in her bed.

Oth. It is the cause, it is the cause, my soul,
Let me not name it to you, you chalk fars:
It is the cause, yet I've not shed her blood,
Nor fear that whiter skin of hers then snow,
And smooth as monumental alabaster;
Yet she must die, else she'll betray more men,
Put out the light, and then put out the light:
If I quench thee, thou flaming Minifter,
I can again thy former light restore,
Should I repent me; but once put out thine,
Thou cunningst pattern of excelling nature,
I know not where is that Prometian heat,
That can thy light relumine: when I have pluckt the rose,
I cannot give it vital growth again,
It must needs wither; I'll bind it on the tree: kisst her.
A balmy breath, that does almost persuade
Justice her self to break her sword: one more;
Be thus when thou art dead, and I will kill thee,
And love thee after: one more, and this the last:
So sweet was never so fatal: I must weep,
But they are cruel tears: this sorrows heavenly,
It strikes where it does love: she wakes.

Def. Who's there? Othello?
Oth. I, Desdemona.
Def. Will you come to bed my Lord?
Oth. Have you prayed to night Desdemona?
Def. I my Lord.
Oth. If you be think your self of any crime,
Unreconcil'd as yet to heaven and grace,
Solicite for it strait.

Def. Alas my Lord, what do you mean by that?
Oth. Well, do it, and be brief, I will walk by,
I will not kill thy unprepared spirit,
No, heaven fore-fend, I would not kill thy soul.
Def. Talk you of killing?
Oth. I, I do.
Def. Then heaven have mercy on me.
Oth. Amen, with all my heart.
Def. If you say so, I hope you will not kill me.
Oth. Hum.
Def. And yet I fear you, for y'are fatal then,
When your eyes roll so: why I should fear, I know not.
Since guiltinesse I know not, but yet I feel I fear.
Oth. Think on thy sins.
Def. They are loves I bear to you.
Oth. And for that thou diest.
Def. That deaths unnatural, that kills for loving.
Alas, why gnaw you so your neather lip:
Some bloody passion shakes your very frame,
These are portents: but yet I hope.
They do not point on me.
Oth. Peace, and be still.
Def. I will so, what's the matter?
Oth. That handkerchief which I so lov'd, and gave thee;
Thou gaveft to Cassio.
Def: No, by my life and soul,
Send for the man and ask him.
Oth. Sweet soul take heed, take heed of perjury,
Thou art on thy death bed.
Def: I, but not yet to die.
Oth. Yes, presently:
Therefore confess thee freely of thy sin,
For to deny each article with oath
Connot remove, nor choak the strong conception
That I do groan within: thou art to die.
Def: Then Lord have mercy on me.
Oth. I say amen.
Def: And have you mercy too:
I never did offend you in my life,—never lov'd Cassio,
But with such general warranty of heaven,
As I might love; I never gave him token.
Oth. By heaven I saw my handkerchief in his hand:
O perjur'd woman, thou dost stone my heart,
And mak'st me call, what I intend to do,
A murder, which I thought a sacrifice;
I saw the handkerchief.
Def: He found it then,
I never gave it him, send for him hither,
Let him confess a truth.
Oth. He has confess'd.
Def: What, my Lord?
Oth. That he hath—saw thee.
Def: How, unlawfully?
Oth. I.
Def: He will not say so.
Oth. No, his mouth is stop'd,
Honest Fago hath tain order for't.
Def: My fear interprets then,—what is he dead?
Oth. Had all his hairs been lives,
My great revenge had stomach for em all,
Def: Alas he is betray'd, and I undone,
Oth. O strumpet,—weepest thou for him to my face?
Def: O banish me my Lord, but kill me not.
Oth. Down strumpet.
Def: Kill me to morrow, let me live to night.
Oth. Nay, an you strive.
Def: But half an hour,
Oth. Being done, there is no pause.
Def: But while I say one prayer.
Oth. 'Tis too late. Emilia calls within.
Em. My Lord, my Lord, what ho, my Lord, my Lord.
Oth. What voice is this? not dead? not yet quite dead?
Thou art cruel, am yet merciful,
I would not have thee linger in thy pain;—so, so.
   Em. What ho, my Lord, my Lord.
Oth. Who's there?
   Em. O good my Lord, I'de speak a word with you.
Oth. Yes, 'tis Emilia, by and by: she's dead:
'Tis like she comes to speak of Caffio's death;
The noise was here; ho, no more moving,
Still as the grave shall she come in? wer't good?
I think she stirs again; no, what's the bilt?
If she come in, she'll sure speak to my wife.
My wife, my wife, what wife? I ha no wife:
O insupportable; O heavy hour.
Methinks it should be now a huge Eclipse
Of Sun and Moon, and that the afflicted Globe,
Should yawn at alteration.
   Em. I do beseech you I may speak with you,—O good my Lord.
Oth. I had forgotten thee: come in Emilia:
Soft, by and by; let me the curtains draw.  Enter Emilia.
Where art thou? what's the matter with thee now?
   Em. O my good Lord, yonder's foul murders done.
Oth. What? now?
   Em. But now my Lord.
Oth. It is the very error of the Moon,
She comes more near the earth then she was wont,
And makes men mad.
   Em. Caffio my Lord has kil'd a young Venetian,
Cali'd Roderigo.
Oth. Roderigo kil'd, and Caffio kil'd?
   Em. No Caffio is not kil'd.
Oth. Not Caffio kil'd? then murthers out of tune;
And sweet revenge grows harsh.
   Def. O falsely, falsely murderers.
   Em. Alas, what cry is that?
Oth. That, what?
   Em. Out and alas, it was my Ladies voice,
Help, help, ho help, O Lady speak again,
Sweet Desdemona, O sweet Mistress speak.
   Def. A guiltles death I die.
   Em. O who has done this deed?
Def. No body, I my self, farewell:
Commend me to my kind Lord, O farewell.
   Oth. Why how should she be murdered?
   Em. Alas, who knows?
Oth. You heard her say, her self, it was not I.
   Em. She said so, I must needs report a truth.
Oth. She's like a lyar gon to burning hell,
'Twas
Twas I that kill'd her.

Em. O, the more Angel she,
And you the blacker devil.

Oth. She turn'd to folly, and she was a whore.

Em. Thou dost bely her and thou art a devil.

Oth. She was false as water.

Em. Thou art rash as fire,
To say that she was false: O she was heavenly true.

Oth. Cassio did rop her, ask thy husband else.

O I were damn'd beneath all deep in hell,
But that I did proceed upon just grounds
To this extremity, thy husband knew it all.

Em. My husband?

Oth. Thy husband.

Em. That she was false to wedlock?

Oth. I, with Cassio: nay, had she bin true,
If heaven would make me such another world,
Of one intire and perfect Chrifolite,
P'de not have told her for it.

Em. My husband?

Oth. I, 'twas he that told me first;
An honest man he is, and hates the slime.
That sticks on filthy deeds.

Em. My husband?

Oth. What needs this iteration? woman, I say thy husband,
Em. Oh Milites, villany hath made mocks with love:
My husband say that she was false?

Oth. He woman, I say thy husband; dost understand the word?
My friend, thy husband, honest, honest Jago.
Em. If he say so, may his pernicious foul
Rot half a grain a day; he lies to' th heart,
She was too fond of her most filthy bargain.

Oth. Ha?

Em. Do thy worst;
This deed of thine is no more worthy heaven,
Then thou wait worthy her.

Oth. Peace, you were belst.

Em. Thou haft not half the power to do me harm,
As I have to be hurt: O gull, O dolt,
As ignorant as durt; thou haft done a deed—
I care not for thy sword, I'll make thee know,
Tho I left twenty lives: help, help, O help;
The Moor has kill'd my Milites, murder, murder.

Enter Montano, Gragantio, Jago, and others.

Mon. What is the matter? how now General?

Em.
Em. O, are you come Jago? you have done well.
That men must lay their murder on your neck.

Gra. What is the matter?

Em. Disprove this villain, if thou be'lt a man;
He says thou toldst him that his wife was false;
I know thou didst not, thou art not such a villain;
Speak, for my heart is full.

Jag. I told him what I thought, and told no more,
Then what he found himself was apt and true.

Em. But did you ever tell him she was false?

Jag. I did.

Em. You told a lie, an odious damn'd lie;
Upon my foul a lie, a wicked lie;
She false with Cassio; did you say with Cassio?

Jag. With Cassio Miftress; go to, charm your tongue.

Em. I will not charm my tongue, I am bound to speak;
My Miftress here lies murdered in her bed.

All. Oh heavens forefend.

Em. And your reports have set the murder on.

Oth. Nay, stare not masts, it is true indeed.

Gra. 'Tis a strange truth.

Mon. O monstrous act!

Em. Villany, villany, villany;
I think upon't, I think, I smell a villany;
I thought so then; I'd kill my self for grief,
O villany, villany.

Jag. What are you mad? I charge you get you home.

Em. Good Gentlemen let me have leave to speak;
'Tis proper I obey him, but not now:
Perhaps Jago, I will ne're go home.

Oth. Oh, no, no.

Oth. Falls on the bed.

Em. Nay, lay thee down, and roar,
For thou hast kill'd the sweetest innocent
That ere did lift up eye.

Oth. O she was foul:
I scarce did know you Uncle, there lies your Niece,
Whose breath indeed, these hands have newly stopt;
I know this act shews terrible and grim.

Gr. Poor Desdemona, I am glad thy father's dead,
Thy match was mortal to him, and pure grief
Shore his old thread in twain: did he live now,
This sight would make him do a desperate turn,
Yea, curse his better Angel from his side,
And fall to reprobation.

Oth. 'Tis pitiful, but yet Jago knows,
That she with Cassio, had the act of shame
A thousand times committed; Cassio confess it:
And she did gratifie his amorous works,
With that recognifance and pledg of love,
Which I first gave her; I faw it in his hand;
It was a handkerchief, an antique token
My Father gave my Mother.

Em. O heaven, O heavenly powers.
Jag. Come, hold your peace.
Em. 'Twill out, 'twill out: I hold my peace Sir, no,
I'll be in speaking, liberal as the north;
Let heaven, and men, and devils, let 'em all,
All, all cry shame against me, yet I'll speak.

Jag. Be wife, and get you home.
Em. I will not.

Gra. Fie, your fword upon a woman?
Em. O thou dull Moor, that handkerchief thou speakeft on,
I found by fortune, and did give my husband:
For often with a solemn earnestness,
(More then indeed belong'd to such a trifle,)
He beg'd of me to steal it.

Jag. Villanous whore.
Em. She gave it Cassio? no, alas I found it,
And I did giv't my husband.

Jag. Filth, thou liest.
Em. By heaven I do not, I do not Gentlemen,
O murderous Coxcomb! what should such a fool
Do with so good a woman?

The Moor runs at Jago. Jago kills his wife.

Oth. Are—there no stones in heaven,
But what serves for the thunder? pernicious villain.

Gra. The woman falls, sure he has kil'd his wife.
Em. I, I, O lay me by my Mistrefs fide.    Exit Jago.
Gra. He's gone, but his wife's kil'd.

Mfn. 'Tis a notorious villain, take your weapon,
Which I have here recovered from the Moor:
Come, guard the door without, let him not pass,
But kill him rather; I le after that fame villain,
For 'tis a damn'd slave.   Exit Mont, and Gratiano.

Oth. I am not valiant neither,
But every puny whipfter gets my fword:
But why should honour out-live honesty?
Let it go all.

Em. What did thy fong bode Lady?
Hark, canst thou hear me? I will play the Swan,
And die in mufick; willow, willow, willow.
Moor, she was chaft, she lov'd the cruel Moor.
So come my soul to bliss, as I speak true;
So speaking as I think, I die, I die.

Oth. I have another weapon in this chamber,
It is a sword of Spain, the Hefbrooks temper:
O here it is; Uncle, I must come forth.

Gra. If thou attempt it, it will cost thee dear,
Thou hast no weapon; and perforce must suffer.

Oth. Look in upon me then, and speak to me.

Or naked as I am, I will assault thee.

Gra. What is the matter?

Oth. Behold, I have a weapon,
A better never did it self sustain
Upon a Soldier's thigh: I have seen the day,
That with this little arm, and this good sword,
I have made my way through more impediments.
Then twenty times your stop: but O vain boast,
Who can controil his fate? 'tis not so now.
Be not afraid, though you do see me weapon'd;
Here is my journies end, here is my Butt,
The very sea-mark of my utmost fail.
Do you go back dismaid? 'tis a loft fear,
Man but a rush against Othello's breast,
And he retirest. Where should Othello go?
How dost thou look now? O ill-star'd wench,
Pale as thy smock; when we shall meet at compt,
This look of thine will hurl my soul from heaven,
And fiends will snatch at it: cold, cold, my girl,
Even like thy chastity: O cursed slave:
Whip me you devils,
From the possession of this heavenly fight,
Blow me about in winds, roast me in sulphur,
Wash me in steep down gulphs of liquid fire,
O Desdemona, Desdemona dead, O, o, o.

Enter Lodovico, Montano, and Officers,
Caffio in a Chair.

Lod. Where is this rash and most unfortunate man?
Oth. That's he that was Othello, here I am.

Lod. Where is that Viper? bring the villain forth,

Oth. I look down towards his feet, but that's a fable,
If that thou be'st a devil I cannot kill thee.

Lod. Wrench his sword from him,

Jag. I bleed sir, but not kil'd.

Oth. I am not sorry neither, I'de have thee live,

For in my sense 'tis happiness to die.

Lod. O thou Othello, that was once so good,
Faln in the practice of a damned slave,
What should be said to thee?

Oth. Why, any thing,
An honourable murderer if you will;
For nought did I in hate, but all in honour.

Lod. This wretch hath part confess his villany:
Did you and he consent in Cassio's death?

Oth. I.

Caf. Dear General, I did never give you cause.

Oth. I do believe it, and I ask you pardon;
Will you I pray, demand that demy devil,
Why he hath thus infran'd my soul and body?

Jag. Demand me nothing what you know you know;
From this time forth I never will speak word.

Lod. What, not to pry?

Gra. Torments will open your lips.

Oth. Well, thou dost best.

Lod. Sir, you shall understand what hathbefalan,
Which, as I think you know not: here is a letter,
Found in the pocket of the slain Roderigo;
And here another; the one of them imports
The death of Cassio, to be undertook by Roderigo.

Oth. O villain,

Caf. Most heathenish, and most gross.

Lod. Now here's another discontented paper,
Found in his pocket too, and this it seems,
Roderigo meant to have sent this damned villain,
But that belike, Jago in the interim
Came in, and satisfied him.

Oth. O the pernicious catiff:
How came you Cassio by a handkerchief?
That was my wife's?

Caf. I found it in my chamber;
And he himself confess it but even now,
That there he drop't it, for a special purpose,
Which wrought to his desire.

Oth. O fool, fool, fool.

Caf. There is besides in Roderigoes letter,
How he obraids Jago, that he made him
Brave me upon the watch whereon it came,
That I was call'd; and even but now he spake,
After long seeming dead, Jago hurt him,
Jagoet him on.

Lod. You must forsake this room, and go with us,
Your power and your command is taken off,
And Cassio rules in Cyprus: For this slave,
If there be any cunning cruelty,
That can torment him much, and hold him long,
It shall be his: You shall close prisoner rest,
Till that the nature of your fault be known
To the Venetian State; come bring him away.

Oth. Soft you, a word or two before you go;
I have done the State some service and they know't:
No more of that: I pray you in your letters,
When you shall these unlucky deeds relate,
Speak of me as I am; nothing extenuate,
Nor set down ought in malice: then you must speak.
Of one that lov'd not wisely, but too well:
Of one not easily jealous, but being wrought,
Perplex'd in the extremity: of one whose hand,
Like the base Indian, threw a pearl away,
Richer then all his Tribe: of one whose teardomed eyes,
Albeit unused to the melting mood,
Drop tears, as fast as the Arabian trees
Their medicinal gum: Set you down this;
And say besides, that in Aleppo once;
Where a Malignant and a Turban Turk,
Beat a Venetian, and traduced the State;
I took bi'th throat the circumcised dog,
And smote him thus. He stabs himself.

Lod. O bloody period.
Gra. All that's spoke is mar'd.

Oth. I kift thee ere I kild thee, noway but this,
Killing my self, to die upon a kiss. He dies.

Cas. This did I fear, but thought he had no weapon,
For he was great of heart.

Lod. O Spartane dog,
More fell then anguish, hunger, or the Sea.
Look on the tragick lodging of this bed,
This is thy work; the object poisons fight,
Let it be hid: Gratiano, keep the house,
And seize upon the fortunes of the Moor,
For they succeed to you: To you Lord Governour,
Remains the senfure of this hellish villain,
The time, the place, the torture; O enforce it;
My self will strait aboard, and to the State,
This heavy act with heavy heart relate. Exeunt omnes.

FINIS.
